Derby Winner Girt When Persecution Helps Daughters Like Fathers Mr. Bryan on Colleges

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, by the Boston American

The English Derby is over; Captain Cuttle won it. Lord Astor, once an American, had a horse, Tamar, in the race. It ran second.

The most interesting feature of this Derby is Gwendoline Thomas, thirty years old, working as clerk for a small salary. She won more than $250,000 by investing in a sweepstake gamble. All England was interested in gambling in innumerable Derby sweepstakes.

The result will be an expansion of the gambling fever. Out of it will come the marriage of Miss Thomas and her quarter of a million to some young Englishman who will suddenly develop a great affection for her, and live happily, at her expense, ever afterwards — unless he also starts gambling, in which case Gwendoline will be a clerk once more.

Earth's religious powers—the Pope, Archbishop of Canterbury, Low Church and High Church in England, and many others, protest to Lenin against the jailing and threatened execution of Most Reverend Dr. Tikhon, who was patriarch of all Russia, until Lenin removed him.

Russia wanted treasures of the Russian church to feed the starving. The reverend patriarch thought the church should keep the treasure. Whether Divine Providence will sympathize with Lenin or the patriarch you may decide for yourself.

It is certain that Lenin is foolish in this case. His plan is to weaken religion. He posts outside of churches the sign, "Religion is the opium of the people." But he ought to know that to persecute is to strengthen the church.

Lenin, it is said, intends to replace Tikhon with a patriarch of his own picking, chosen to destroy the church from within.

That will not work. The French kings tried establishing and deposing their own Popes at Avignon, but it didn't last. The Pope is still in Rome, and the French kings nowhere.

William Donovan, in Indiana, killed his wife as she held her two-year-old child on her lap. The Board of Pardons planned commutation of the death sentence. The murderer's daughter, Mabel, seventeen years old, wrote, protesting. She wanted her father to be executed, therefore the Pardon Board will not commute.

A strange decision, since it causes the daughter to put her own father to death by her influence, as he put her mother to death with his pistol.

The daughter's message to the Pardon Board recalls Galton's theory that daughters get their qualities from the father, sons their qualities from the mother.

Six millions are starving in Russia; children are given away to anyone that will take them; thousands of bodies, withered by hunger, lie in the fields and along the roads. That is the story the missionaries tell.

China has an army, the biggest in the world, with the exception of Russia's army. More than a million Chinese are in the field, fighting each other. What can you do to help that situation? Until they stop killing each other, how can outsiders help?

Mr. Bryan attacks colleges with a sweeping "Cross of Gold" attack, saying they teach "materialistic doctrines that destroy faith."

Colleges teach engineering, plumbing, chemistry, physics, geology—all materialistic, but not necessarily destroying faith—unless it be such faith as is possessed by a Congo savage easily convinced that he has picked out the wrong pink-nosed idol.

Mr. Bryan says: "Civilization has no foundation except on morality." Morality is the most important thing about civilization. But civilization is founded on other things, on engineering, clean streets, good sewers, farming machinery, railroads.

To be happy, Mr. Bryan ought to visit Mohammedan schools, where little boys sit droning over and over dull, stupid verses of the Koran, while their "teacher," perched high, holds in his hand a long bamboo, to hit on the head any boy that stops muttering the nonsense.

Mr. Bryan would find no "materialistic doctrines there," no "science, no hideous evolution, no bore. The Mohammedan teacher and his pupils know nothing, and don't want to know anything, except nonsense written by Mohammed.

A great welcome awaits Mr. Bryan in any of those Mohammedan schools, and he will find Savonarols, of Italy, and Calvin, of Switzerland, delighted to meet him when he enters above to spend blissful eternity looking down upon the faculties of Harvard, and of other universities, burning up.

Ward Accused of Blackmail

DR. STEVENS FREED

BLACKMAIL CHARGED TO WARD

Declared by New Witness to Be Co-Between in Victimizing Father

White Plains, N. Y., June 2.—The real story of the blackmail of Walter S. Ward, slayer of Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass., was told today by James J. Cunningham, race track tout and private detective, known as "Jimmy the Rat," under arrest as a material witness in the murder mystery.

His arrest followed disclosures uncovered by reporters for the New York American and Boston American.

He was first grilled by reporters and private detectives employed by Hearst newspapers.

District Attorney Frederick S. Weeks and Sheriff George S. Werner of Westchester County then questioned him for several hours.

For the first time the name of the man wounded when Peters was killed was revealed. He is Charles Jackson. He was in a private hospital in Stamford, Ct.

Peters was shot in the library of the Ward home and Jackson wounded then.

According to Cunningham it was Ward's father who was being blackmailed by Peters and two men known as "Rogers" and "Joe" Jackson.

Cunningham said he thought it was over an affair the elder Ward was alleged to have had with a woman. Walter S. Ward was acting as "go between."

Cunningham said he did not see the shooting, but learned of it from both Rogers and Jackson, who arrived at his home in an automobile early in the morning of May 16 after Peters had been killed.

Jackson had a serious wound and wanted treatment without the police learning about it.

Cunningham said he knew a sanitarium in Stamford, Ct., where the wounded man could get secret treatment, so they drove there. That was the last Cunningham saw of Jackson, he said.

Cunningham has told two stories. His first told the Boston American he witnessed the shooting, which took place in the library of the Ward home at New Rochelle, but on being questioned by District Attorney Weeks, Sheriff Werner and other officials changed his original version.

In his original story Cunningham said he took the elder Ward's lawyer to Walter S. Ward's home on the night of the murder to hear by means of a "planted" dictaphone in the cellar how young Ward was blackmailing his own father. He

There's Hope! Price of Gas Will Go Down!

A silver ray of hope broke through the high-cost-of-living clouds today.

The company buys a great deal of its gas from the New England Fuel and Transportation Company. It recently made a new contract, getting its gas for five cents less, and it passed the saving on to the consumer.

PROBE OF JEW BAN BY STATE

Bill to Establish Special Commission Introduced in Legislature

A bill to create a special commission to investigate the charge that an anti-Jew campaign is under way at Harvard was filed in the House of Representatives today. Representative George Pearl Webster of Boxford, the old Bull Moose leader, is the author.

The commission would consist of two Senators and three Representatives and would sit during the legislative recess, reporting when the legislature reconvenes.

Representative Webster in an explanatory addendum to his bill said he filed it in the interests of fair play for all in the greatest college in the East.

He added that he would favor any changes in the law necessary to protect the rights of all students at Harvard, regardless of race, religion or nationality.

NO BAN AT RADCLIFFE.

Representative Stephen C. Sullivan of East Boston filed an order opposing the alleged outbreak of race prejudice. He asked that if the plan to discriminate against Jews were carried through, the tax exemption privileges enjoyed by the university be withdrawn.

Radcliffe College will not follow Harvard if the latter decides to discriminate against the Jews, regardless of the traditionally cleose relations of the two schools.

Dean Park today declared Radcliffe was under no compulsion to follow Harvard's lead in such a matter.

She added that the "limitation of enrolment" plan was not likely to "take" at Radcliffe, as the college is not overcrowded. There are few Jewish girls at Radcliffe.

Harvard's hostility toward Jewish students dates from the time Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell supplanted Dr. Charles W. Eliot as president, according to prominent Boston Jews.

They declare the anti-Semitic agitation in the college and university was born during his regime and encouraged by his example.

Billy's quite a boy. Back Bay police declare. He was picked up by one of their number. He was taken to Chardon Street Home in the West End. A night nurse divorced Billy from his clothes, slipped a nightie on him and tucked him into bed.

Mother of Dead Nurse Raps Prosecution Over Acquittal of Woburn Man

A jury in the East Cambridge Superior Court today found Dr. Michael M. Stevens, Woburn physician, not guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death, last Christmas Day, of Miss Grace Logue, his office assistant.

The jury had been out only forty-three minutes when the foreman sent word that a verdict had been reached. The jurors were smiling as they entered the courtroom.

The crowd immediately surged about the doctor, congratulating him. Mrs. Logue, mother of the dead girl, was in court when the verdict was announced.

"We did not get a fair trial. We are not through with the case yet," she declared.

"Four important witnesses who could have told amazing stories were never called by Assistant District Attorney Blood.

"Those witnesses are my daughter, Anna Logue, Miss Gladys Fielding, Mrs. Helen McCormack and Miss Viola Palmgren."

"My daughter sat in the court room every day during the trial, but was never called. She was under summons and so were the other girls, but Assistant District Attorney Blood never put them on the stand.

"My daughter could have given testimony which I consider important and that should have gone into the records of that case," continued the mother.

"I am not satisfied with the way Assistant District Attorney Blood handled the case for the government. I tried to see him this morning before the arguments were made and the case went to the jury, but Mr. Blood positively refused to see me.

"Major Murchie, counsel for Dr. Stevens, in his argument declared there were no corsets found on the dead girl. That is incorrect, because the undertaker returned a pair to me," declared Mrs. Logue.

Major Murchie after the verdict said:

"The verdict is a sweeping vindication for Dr. Stevens. It is also an indorsement of the tradition that a Massachusetts jury will find on the evidence presented, and find fairly."

Dr. Stevens appeared as cool after the verdict as he had throughout the trial. In a few words, he briefly thanked his counsel and added:

"It is a verdict not only for myself, but for my friends, who are now satisfied that everything is all right."

The charge of Judge John P. Bevers, before whom the case was tried, was short. He impressed the jury with the statement that "if you find this defendant guilty you must first reach the decision that the evidence shows that he was guilty of conduct, reckless, rash and regardless of consequences."

In his final argument Assistant District Attorney Hood scored the medical profession for its "clannishness," and charged Dr. Stevens had deliberately made Miss Logue "want morphine."

He also accused the physician with not telling the truth regarding the seven morphine tablets found to be missing from the bottle he had purchased Christmas Eve.

WIFE DOCTOR TOLD TRUTH.

"Having given Miss Logue the fatal dose," the attorney said, "Dr. Stevens closed two doors and went to sleep, leaving the young woman to die alone."

The judge's charge followed closely arguments of defence and State surveys.

Major Robert C. Murchie, attorney for Dr. Stevens in his argument, discussed the missing seven morphine tablets, which had disappeared from the vial of the drug Dr. Stevens purchased Christmas Eve, when Dr. Stuart, medical examiner, examined the bottle the following morning.

"We have made no attempt to hide anything in connection with the missing tablets," said the attorney. "Dr. Stevens had told Dr. Stuart all he knew about them as Dr. Stuart has testified before you.

"Dr. Stevens has taken the stand here and told you all he knows about the tablets. He has told you that he purchased what he thought was a full vial of the drug, and has made no attempt to explain how the seven tablets came to be missing.

"It is for the State to prove what became of those tablets—not for us. One thing is certain. If Miss Logue had taken them then Dr. William Boos, of the Harvard Medical College, would have found some trace of them when he came to make his examination. But he did not. If Dr. Boos's analysis proves anything it proves that the dead girl did not take those seven tablets.

"In making the charge of manslaughter against my client," Major Murchie said, "it will be necessary for the State to show that Dr. Stevens was guilty of foolhardy recklessness amounting to a crime; that the giving of a half grain dose of morphine, followed by a quarter grain, amounted to such foolhardy recklessness."

DEFENSE GIVING DRUG.

Major Murchie then reviewed the history of the case and the evidence of the experts called on both sides.

"Every doctor summoned to testify before you has admitted on the stand that the treatment given the young woman and the administration of the morphine to ease her agony were in strict accordance with good medical practice."

DONAGHUE FILES 10,000 NAMES FOR DIST. ATTY.

Peter J. Donaghue today filed his papers for the Democratic nomination for district attorney of Suffolk County. They contained nearly 10,000 names, obtained by his friends in the Boston Central Labor Union, the Teamsters' Joint Council and the Building Trades Council. Every district in Boston, Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop was represented among the signers. His statement to the people reads in part:

"I will not be subservient to any political boss or improper influence. There will be no secret keys to the door of justice. The poor man will be accorded the same treatment as his more wealthy brother. My candidacy is an appeal to the people of Suffolk to elect their own district attorney.

FILM ACTRESS NAMED IN WARD MYSTERY

MRS. MARGARET BLACK

The question has been asked if Mrs. Black, beautiful screen actress, knew what led to the slaying of Clarence Peters by Walter S. Ward. Mrs. Black is separated from her husband, who claims to have heard of attentions paid her by a wealthy man. She is the daughter of Louis Bruenn, former Metropolitan Life official.

Then came the first adverse break. "I had borrowed and paid $50 to a detective agency for the use of a new dictaphone. It had been properly installed. The wires led from Ward's library to the cellar, but something went wrong. Our receiver did not work.

"I waited and hoped. I knew that the conversation I wanted was taking place up stairs. But I couldn't hear it, and I couldn't let the lawyer listen in in such a manner that he would understand that I had been on the level in my information to him.

"I was frantic. I labored at the dictaphone. It just wouldn't work. The more uneasy I got the more uncertain in his attitude became the attorney. I knew the thoughts that were chasing through his mind. He was asking himself if I was on the level.

"An hour went by. Two hours. I held the lawyer as long as I could then I could hold him no longer. He rose and said he was convinced that he had been bunooed. He said he was going away from the house.

"He started for the back pantry steps. I tried to stop him. He was angry. He couldn't stop him. He walked up the pantry steps. I followed. On the ground floor there was a sudden scream. The voice was that of a maid. She hollered: 'There are men in the house—Robbers!'

"There was a hullabaloo. The lawyer kept his head wonderfully. He told me maid to be quiet and strolled in dignified fashion into the library. I followed. I didn't know what else to do.

"Peters was seated on one side of the library, his companion, my stool, on the other. Ward sat between them. Neither had a gun to my knowledge.

"When Ward saw the familiar face of the friend of the family, the legal advisor of his father, he flew into a wild passion. His face turned as white as a stone. His eyes were red rimmed and his lips were bared over his teeth.

WHEN WARD FIRED.

"With the deftness of a man accustomed to handling a pistol he whipped out a gun and fired one shot at Peters. The latter was sitting down and had apparently been made comfortable by Ward, for his coat, collar and tie had been removed.

"The first shot killed Peters.

"Two more shots were fired at my stool. One creased his forehead the other lodged in his right shoulder. A fourth shot went wild.

"The house was in an uproar. Mrs. Ward fainted. She was on the second floor. One of the children fell half way down stairs.

"Hardly had the confusion died down when a policeman's night stick rapped against the card. Next an officer, stocky in build, with dark hair streaked with gray, about fifty years old, came into the room.

"He was soon followed by a younger man in a police officer's uniform who became greatly excited over the two prostrate forms and the welter of blood. This last policeman demanded that a report be made at headquarters.

REFUSED TO REMOVE BODY.

"When the family legal adviser, the man who had come to the house with me, took command. He said: 'Commissioner Ward is handling this.'

"Next he demanded of me that I remove both bodies. Ward stood trembling, with the gun in his hand, crying: 'Mr. X— These are the blackmailers!'

"I was dazed. I realized my position. The lawyer had demanded I take both bodies away and assume responsibility for what had happened.

"I felt Peters' pulse and heart and found that he was dead. The other man was bleeding profusely and groaning. I told the lawyer that I would remove the wounded man, my stool, but I would not touch Peters. Both the lawyer and Ward refused to approach the prostrate men.

"Finally I took the wounded 'stool' to a waiting car, two blocks away. He was weak and bleeding terribly. He was suffering from an internal hemorrhage. I bound up the gaping wound in his shoulder with strips of handkerchiefs and bound 2 axes against the wound.

"He seemed to me to be dying. I determined to protect him. I instructed my chauffeur to drive to Stamford, Ct., where I knew a doctor who was under obligations to me. It was almost midnight when we reached Stamford. The shooting took place at 10:20 o'clock.

"My friend, the doctor, agreed to take him in for the time being. He did not know of all the particulars, nor did the friend who acted as my chauffeur. My 'stool' is still there, so far as I know, unless he has communicated with those who could help him.

"We both realize this is an awkward position, but so help me God! this is the truth and nothing but the truth."

Following Cunningham's story to the American he was questioned by Westchester County officials. He said his first knowledge of the Ward shooting came about half past one o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, May 16, when a man who said he was Charley Rogers called him at the home o his mother in the Bronx and said:

"Bill Jackson and I have gotten into a mess. Jackson has been shot by that damn fool Ward. Ward went crazy. I have Jackson in the car. Can you help us get a doctor?"

Cunningham said he promised to help and Rogers, whom he had never met before, drove his car to his home. They arrived within half an hour of the phone message. Rogers drove a supersix, dark blue body, open touring car.

TAKING JACKSON AWAY.

Cunningham gave the following description of the two men:

Bill Jackson, twenty-five, five feet, six inches tall, stocky, weighing 150 pounds, Hebrew, dark, curly, abundant black hair.

Cunningham gave a vivid description of the arrival of the car at his home in the Bronx. Rogers was at the wheel. Jackson was slumped half reclining in the rear seat, with the lap robe thrown over his shoulder. He seemed to be semi-conscious.

SAID WARD SHOT HIM.

Q—What did you say to Jackson? A—I said what the h—l has happened? and Jackson replied: "That damn fool I told you about two weeks ago, he went crazy."

Q—Who do you mean? A.—He said Ward.

Q—Did he say who shot him? A.—Yes, he said Ward had shot him.

Q—Did he explain why Ward had shot him? A.—Yes.

Q—Why? A.—He said that he had tried to work on Ward a little plan that he and I had been talking about a few weeks before.

Q—What was that plan? A.—It was a plan to show young Ward up in his true light to George Ward his father.

Q—In what way were you going to show him up? What had Jackson and you talked about on this point? A.—Jackson had told me that he understood Walter S. Ward was holding his father up. He said the Walter Ward was blackmailing him self and making his father believe that other people were blackmailing him.

Q—On what kind of a story was Walter S. Ward holding his father up in this manner? A.—It was a certain story concerning the elder Ward in connection with his travels through the white light district.

WARD BLACKMAIL PLOT IS BARED BY WITNESS

had engaged Jackson as a "stool pigeon," he said, to trap Ward in the library, the lawyer in the cellar to overhear the conversation.

How the dictaphone failed to work and what follows is revealed by Cunningham.

Incidentally he brought into the case for the first time the name of Commander J. K. L. Ross, famous Canadian turfman and owner of Sir Barton. He and Jackson, he said, had worked for Ross doing race-track detective work. The naming of Ross probably disposes of "Charlie Ross," frequently mentioned, but never found.

Here is Cunningham's story. He is speaking of the blackmail ring, the "old mob" and Jackson, who proposed trapping young Ward:

He told of a "stool" he knew, who came to borrow from him, and told him a story that "surprised even me." The original story consisted:

"He told me that a wealthy New Rochelle man was still in association with the old mob. He told me his man was pressed for money, admitted that he had even stooped to the one chance left to get him the amount of money needed. How did I get it?

"Why simply by going to his father George S. Ward. He did not go directly to his father. He used another method, perhaps dictated by certain associates. Don't let's go into that now. Suffice it to say that the old matter was dragged into the background. I was told, by Walter Ward, acting through agents, of course.

"This matter concerned a certain affair that, it had been believed, was thoroughly hushed up. A man of wealth, a man of violent passions, attacked a certain woman. This woman was a lady of quality. Her husband was a man of wealth and standing also. He was an official of an oil company known the wide world over.

"The first man completely lost his head. With wolf-like ferocity, he attacked this woman one evening. She was shocked and physically wounded. The matter was hushed up.

"But the New Rochelle man knew all about the occurrence. He stored it in the back of his head. He probably had no idea of ever using it. But circumstances arose under which the blackmail gang learned of the affair.

"They used this information to hold a club over the head of Walter S. Ward. The latter, mind you, possessed little wealth in his own name. Certain matters had arisen that made it essential for him to get together a certain amount of money, in other words, it was a sort of double blackmail scheme that was being worked.

GETTING TO WARD HOME.

"Well, my 'stool' told me all about the thing. I have enough to believe it true. I produced the twenty dollars. Then came the problem in my mind:

What should I do with this information? I was in desperate need of money, but I am not a crook. I mean this, mind you. You will hear many tales about me, but I swear solemnly that I did not frame a blackmail plot against Walter S. Ward.

"But I did see a way to use this information. I figured that the man who would profit most by a shakedown, complete knowledge of all the facts was George S. Ward, father of Walter S. Ward. So I got a certain connection into Walter Ward's house in New Rochelle. I borrowed money to buy a dictaphone.

"This dictaphone was installed in Walter S. Ward's library. I'll tell you how it was done in due time. But it was done. The dick led from Ward's library to the cellar. The receiving apparatus lay behind an old trunk in the cellar.

ENLISTS WARD'S LAWYER.

"Then what? said I to myself. Only one possibility presented itself. This was to secure a fee for myself for delivering information that might save tens of thousands of dollars to George S. Ward.

"I knew the confidential attorney for George S. Ward. He is keen. He possesses one of the best legal minds in the country. I went to him. He was skeptical. He doubted my motives. I finally persuaded him to go with me to the Walter Ward home in New Rochelle on the evening of May 15 last. I told him I would be able to convince him that a dastardly plot was in operation, directed against the pocketbook of George S. Ward, who is in Europe.

"I knew I could convince the lawyer, because I knew that my 'stool' could go in and talk to Walter Ward and discuss the scheme. The lawyer, one of the biggest men in this country, I may remark, finally consented to go with me to New Rochelle and give me a chance to prove my assertions. All I asked was a fiat fee for my services if I succeeded in proving my case. The lawyer consented.

PETERS THERE AS WITNESS.

"My stool was notified. He agreed to make an appointment with Walter Ward and discuss the blackmail plot. I told him to get a witness.

"He chose Clarence Peters, an ignorant messenger boy, absolutely unable mentally to take part in a real criminal conspiracy. I assure you that Peters, although acquainted with Ward, was present in the Ward house that night purely through the accident of his arrival in New York at that time and his renewed connection with my stool.

"This was the situation when the lawyer and myself made our entrance into the cellar of the Walter Ward home on the evening of May 15. There are four easy means of getting into the cellar of the Ward home. We employed one means.

"In the meantime my stool had phoned Ward, telling him he must see him that night. Ward rather reluctantly consented. The stool picked up Peters and went to the Ward house. Walter Ward received them and treated them courteously.

DICTAPHONE DIDN'T WORK.

"He took them into his library, as we had hoped. He called for sandwiches and refreshment. These were brought in. The lawyer and I took up our position in the cellar.

BOXFORD GIRL'S VERSION OF ATTACK BY MADMAN IS DOUBTED

PROOF OF HER STORY LACKING

State Police Find Persons in Vicinity at the Time Heard No Outcries

Boxford, June 2.—Doubt was today thrown upon the story of seventeen-year-old Jennie Doucette, that she was beaten by a mad tramp on the veranda of her home when state police investigating the strange assault interviewed persons who were close to the family home at the time the girl said she was assaulted and heard no outcries.

The girl is in bed suffering from a scalp wound and nervousness. She was found unconscious, blood streaming from the cut in her head and her eyes closed and inflamed from a substance supposed to have been red pepper thrown in her face.

She told the police she was attacked about 9 o'clock on Thursday morning by a man who had attacked her twice before.

Today State Officer Richard J. Griffin, in charge of the investigation, said men working in a sandpit fifty yards from the house heard no outcries at the time the girl said she was battling furiously with her assailant on the porch of her home.

STORY OF ATTACK.

The girl said she was attacked as she was about to enter her home after gathering firewood. Here is her story, which state police are investigating, while a posses of citizens beat the Boxford woods for the supposed mad-tramp assailant:

"I was at work about the house and about 9 o'clock I went out into the yard to get some wood for the kitchen stove. As I returned with an armful I noticed the shadow of a man on the door, but could not see him.

"As I entered the doorway a handful of pepper was thrown into my face, blinding me. I dropped the wood and was screaming with pain as I stumbled along into the kitchen. My eyes were closed and I struck my forehead against an electric light bulb that mother had left on the kitchen table.

"The man grabbed me and, as I continued to scream and shout for help, he gagged me with a piece of cloth.

"The dog came running into the house and attacked the man, who quickly disappeared.

SWOONED ON PIAZZA.

"I was suffering terribly from the pepper in my eyes, but managed to stumble along through the house until I reached the piazza, where I must have fallen unconscious.

"I did not get a look at the man, but I feel sure the dog bit him, and I think the blood-stained stick found in the house was the one he tried to use on the dog."

Thomas Valkonis, a local fruit dealer, says he was driving by the Doucette home and, seeing the girl lying on the steps, drove up into the yard. She was covered with blood and he picked her up and carried her into the house where he removed the gag and squeezed juice from an orange and a lemon into her mouth to revive her.

TOWN SOON ALARMED.

The girl's clothing was torn, he says. The police found an orange and a lemon cut in halves on the hatrack in the front hall, but say they were not squeezed and are investigating this story.

Valkonis says he notified Thomas Downe, who notified the L. C. Colby sisters and Carl Brown and an alarm to the Congregational Church bell. Townspeople quickly gathered and the posse started to search woods and camps.

Mrs. Parker Cheney, East Boxford, says that several days ago a middle aged man, shabbily dressed, called at her home and asked for money to get shaved, as he was going to marry a very young girl. The description tallies with that of the man figuring in the assault on May 8.

SAW STRANGER PASS.

John Chandler, who lives near the Doucette place, says that a man passed his house Tuesday, carrying a coat on his arm, and that the Doucette collie attacked him. The description is the same as of the alleged assailant.

Mrs. Doucette, who returned home after the attack, says that Cliff Boyian, a Gloucester fish peddler, told her that he saw a strange man on the road a week ago, who jumped into the bushes and disappeared when he saw the Boyian auto.

Owing to this, Mrs. Doucette said she kept Jennie home from high school in Andover.

JUDGE CALLS LAWYER LIAR IN COURT

Judge Samuel Abbott, in Waltham District court today, cut short a discussion with Attorney Bernard Murphy by declaring Murphy was a liar and adding that he considered the attorney in contempt of court.

Murphy was asking for a new trial for two clients sentenced to three months each in jail for maintaining liquor nuisances.

He said the judge was influenced before the trial began. The judge demanded that the attorney produce witnesses to that effect. Murphy said he had seen the judge and the chief of police talking and concluded they were talking over the case. The chief of police took the stand and denied the lawyer's statement and it was then the judge announced to Murphy that he lied.

He added that he would think the matter over and decide whether to punish the lawyer.

Women Shoplifters Given Two Years Despite Plea

Pleas for suspended sentences on the promise that Laura Freeman and Mabel Smith, roving shoplifters, would leave town failed to save them in Municipal Court today.

"The place for such women as these is jail," said Judge Wentworth.

He sentenced them to two years each in the House of Correction.

They appealed and were held in $2,000 bail each.

Both women were found guilty of the theft of $140 worth of merchandise from a Boston department store.

REVENUE AGENT KILLED BY NEW HAVEN TRAIN

Body of Joseph P. Courtney Is Found at Saugatuck, Ct., Station

Saugatuck, Ct., June 2.—Joseph P. Courtney, employed in the estate tax division of the United States Internal Revenue Department, and attached to the New Haven office, was killed by a train of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad at the Saugatuck Westport station early today.

The body was badly mutilated and was identified by letters and documents.

Medical Examiner Nolan gave a preliminary opinion that death was caused by Courtney being struck by train No. 69, which went through here, New York bound, at 4:44 a. m. The engineer of that train reported that a man had been struck at the Saugatuck station.

A special railroad officer, Vernor Godfrew, identified the body. Godfrey served in France with Courtney during the war, and says the latter was attached to the air service as a captain, and was credited with bringing down two enemy airplanes.

He is known to have been at the railroad station last night about 9 o'clock, and report was that he had arguments with two men and again with a woman. These reports were under inquiry, as the authorities were at loss to understand why Courtney should be at the railroad station at so early an hour in the morning, when he was struck.

An inquest will be held tomorrow

He officiated at the Georgetown-Holy Cross football game here last Fall. He formerly played at Villa Nova College and at Lehigh. Los Angeles, June 2.—Ordered from home by her wealthy husband, according to her testimony, Constance Talmadge, film star, was granted a divorce on the ground of desertion by Judge Summerfield from John I. Pialoglou, a tobacco merchant of New York.

It took just eight minutes of testimony to convince the Court that Miss Talmadge was entitled to a decree.

"He told me he was through with married life an dto pack my things and get out," testified the plaintiff.

The couple were married December 26, 1920, and separated April 6, 1921.

MAINE STUDENT IS KILLED IN LOVE ROW

Trinidad, Col., June 2.—Joe McGonigal, night watchman at the Jewel Mine, is in jail at Aguilar, charged with having shot and killed Miss Ella Centres, twenty-five years old, daughter of a boarding house keeper, and W. N. Ferguson, twenty-two years of, of Saco, Me., student at the Colorado School of Mines.

After shooting the two, McGonigal is alleged to have shot himself through the foot in an effort to substantiate an alibi of self-defence.

Jealousy over the girl is said by officials, to have prompted the shooting.

SEEK TO ENJOIN STATLERS

The Preferred Underwriters, Inc., and the Bostonia, Inc., today filed with Judge Carroll in the Supreme Court a bill inej unity asking the court to enjoin the New Haven Railroad from completing the sale of a piece of land in Park square to the Statler Hotel Company, Inc., of New York.

The bill claims that the plaintiffs have a prior right to the purchase of the land, under the terms of a contract with the railroad company. The railroad countered this claim by declaring, through its attorney, that the plaintiffs had failed to meet the terms of that contract and that the company was free to dispose of the property.

Judge Carroll will hear the case today.

William F. White, attorney for the petitioners, announced his clients were ready to comply with the terms of their contract. They have completed arrangements for a 7,000,000 first mortgage on the property and $750,000 second mortgage.

SENATE PASSES BILL TO CLEAR COURT DOCKETS

A bill providing for the appointment of two additional judges of the Superior Court and containing a mass of detailed provisions to clear the congested dockets of the courts was today passed by the State Senate. It had already passed the House. The bill would permit the transfer of equity cases from the Supreme to the Superior Court. It also establishes courts of appeals, made up of lower court judges, to which aggrieved litigants can take their appeals without going to the Superior Court.

BONDSMAN INDICTED SECRETLY BY JURORS

A secret indictment was handed down by the Suffolk County Grand Jury today, charging a professional bondsman with perjury in furnishing bail bonds. The indictment alleges the accused went on bond to the extent of $15,000, when at no time had he property valued at more than $5,000.

MOTIVE LACKING SAYS COUNSEL FOR GETTIGAN

The trial of J. Thomas Gettigan of Revere, charged with murder in the first degree, in having caused the death of his aunt, Miss Elizabeth Cook, in July, 1921, by administering arsenic to her, today neared its end.

For two weeks Judge Dubuque and a jury have listened to testimony presented by the governmental and by the defendant, and today all that remained were arguments by counsel and the charge of Judge Dubuque.

Attorney Roscoe Walsworth, counsel for Gettigan, occupied about an hour and a half in his argument, in which he claimed that the government had failed to show that Gettigan had the exclusive opportunity to administer poison to Mrs. Cook and also had failed to introduce evidence showing that Gettigan at any time had purchased arsenic.

Mr. Walsworth said he could not understand why anyone should have given poison to Mrs. Cook on the day she died, when the evidence showed, that she had been unconscious for three days, and that her death was certain.

There was not the motive to murder Mrs. Cook and Mr. Richardson as would have been the case if they had been healthy, as both were not expected to live, he said.

Discussing the question of motive, Attorney Walsworth said: "If money was the motive, remember that there was someone nearer to it than Gettigan. Who was nearer to Mrs. Cook and Richardson than Gettigan? Mrs. Richardson.

"Another thing stands out. The evidence shows that Gettigan and his wife did everything for Mrs. Cook out of the goodness of their hearts, and they did it both day and night."

U. S. MAIL CHAUFFEUR HELD IN ROBBERY CASE

Clifford McBurney, said to be a United States mail chauffeur, living in Centre street, Jamaica Plain, was arrested today, charged with committing a robbery while armed. Police say he participated in the holdup of Amy Master, of No. 1867 Columbus avenue, Roxbury, bound, beaten and robbed in his tailor shop at that address a week ago.

Arraigned in Roxbury Court McBurney was held in $1,000 for a hearing on June 9. Police say he admitted driving three men to the tailor shop, but said he took no part in the robbery. Master's loss was $3.

Eyes Front! Here Comes the First Knicker Parade

Traverse City, Mich., June 2.—Mayor Swanton's order yesterday banning knickerbockers for women brought quick reaction today with announcements that club women, shop workers, clerks, stenographers and high school girls would parade in protest against the order, and would wear the forbidden raiment.

Mayor Swanton's order brought protests from women's organizations all over the city and also from the chamber of commerce which claims it will seriously interfere with tourist and resort business.

BIG JOB REFUSED BY DUNN, BOGAN

Mayor Curley today announced he had offered the position of Soldiers Relief Commissioner to John F. Dunn, chairman of the Board of Street Commissioners, and to Dr. Frederick L. Bogan, a member of the School Committee. The position pays $5,000 a year.

Both officials declined to accept, General Dunn's salary is $4,500 and Colonel Bogan serves without compensation on the school board. He recently announced his candidacy for re-election.

The soldiers relief department is one of the most important branches of the city government, it has grown so fast, that the Mayor says that the city will in all probability have to spend $1,500,000 in aid of the veterans this year.

JOHN D. BACK OF FIGHT

Chicago, June 2 (By International News Service).—That the powerful hand of John D. Rockefeller, American's richest man, was behind the legal move made by his daughter, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, to forestall the marriage of Mathilde McCormick to Max Oser, Swiss riding master, was intimated today by former Judge Charles S. Cutting, counsel for Mrs. McCormick.

"Is it not true that John D. Rockefeller prompted her to take this step?" he was asked.

"Mr. Rockefeller's views have been plain concerning such foreign alliances," he replied, neither affirming or denying the question. "He has been frequently quoted in the newspapers that none of his wealth would be taken abroad."

Chicago, June 2.—Contending factions of the erstwhile household of Harold F. McCormick were committed to a policy of compromise today over the romantic affairs of Mathilde and Max Oser.

Conferences between counsel for Mathilde mother and her divorced husband, which saved Oser from an absent investigation in court yesterday, were continued today, with tomorrow set by Probate Judge Horner as the date for his decision on Mrs. McCormick's petition for an injunction to halt the marriage plans of Mathilde and the Swiss. Mr. McCormick, father and guardian, has agreed to withhold consent of the marriage at least until Saturday.

George Stark, president of the senior class, gave the address of welcome; the class oration was made by Milton Kramer; the class poem by Elizabeth Chandler; the class history by Kenneth Koch; the class prophecy by Eleanor Golden and Stephen Harris, and the class song by Irwin Cowper and Marion Colby.

John V. Jewett was in charge of the exercises.

the bank, announced today that an assessment of $24.50, designed to raise $34,300, has been made for June 19, and will be used to apply on the shortage caused by the alleged misconduct of the bank's officials.

SECURED AGAINST LOSS.

Mr. Kneeland who declared that other securities fully assure the bank against any loss.

Assistant United States Attorney Joseph W. Keith, who presented the cases against the bankers to the grand jury, said:

"The first count charges that a check of the Crocker Pen Company was paid January 16, for $900-77, that account then being overdrawn $1,255.

"Other counts charge that a check for $5,000 issued by Joseph Adams was paid January 4 from an account, 'Joseph Adams Special,' which had been opened with an overdraft of $1,500, and that this account was then overdrawn $3,014.

"Other checks drawn by Mr. Adams also were paid at various times, although his accounts were much overdrawn. This is true of a number of other checks, one by the Allen Spool & Wood Turning Company for $1,845, when that firm's account was overdrawn $7,676.

OVERDRAWN $32,000.

"At one time, it is charged, a check drawn by Mr. Adams for $3,000 was paid although his account at the time was overdrawn $32,000.

"The seventh, eighth and ninth count charge that certificates of deposits for $13,000 were issued although the bank received nothing for them. These certificates were discounted later by Foster at a Boston trust company.

"An Winchester National Bank was organized November 28, 1917, with a capitalization of $100,000.

"Mr. Foster had been president of the Allen Spool and Wood Turning Company, and treasurer of the trust company."

The jury reported in all twenty-seven true bills and three secret indictments.

Among those indicted was Benjamin Greenberg of Hull, son-in-law of Simon Swig, on the charge of receiving stolen property of the United States and with receiving stolen mail matter, the property being railroad bonds which were stolen in a mail train robbery in Los Angeles in March 1921.

Attorney Milton A. Stone of No. 53 State street, and Clyde Colt, with an office in the same building, were indicted for using the mails in a scheme to defraud in connection with the promotion of stock sales in the North Shore Fish Corporation.

ROXBURY MAN AND WIFE ARE HELD IN DRUG CASE

"Been using 25 grains a day for twenty years," said Edward J. Mitchell. Arrested with his wife on Centre street, Roxbury, for having drugs in their possession. Police say they found morphine and a hypodermic needle in the couple's room. Mitchell made the remark to an officer in Roxbury Court.

Then he collapsed and had to have medical treatment. The pair were put in care of the probation officer until July 14, when they will be given a hearing.

The liner Haverford, which is reopening the Boston, Queenstown and Liverpool service of the White Star line, arrived in port today with seventy-six cabin and eighty-four steerage passengers. After disembarking her passengers the Haverford sailed for Philadelphia to discharge and take on cargo. She will return to Boston to embark passengers and sail for Queenstown and Liverpool June 15.

The new White Star liner Pittsburg will alternate with the Haverford and will sail from Liverpool on her maiden voyage to Boston June 6.

TAFT URGES WAR BONUS FOR STEEL WORKERS

Washington, June 4.—The government was declared by Chief Justice Taft in testifying today before the House claims committee to be obliged morally to pay war claims of $8,000 Bethlehem Steel Company workers amounting to more than a million dollars.

The Chief Justice, who was joint chairman of the War Labor Board under the award of which the claim is made, said the question to be determined was how many and what workers were entitled to payment. The claims arose out of the refusal of the company to pay bonuses as ordered.

CITY OF BOSTON MUST RETURN $17,417 TAXES

Taxes assessed by the city amounting to $17,417.30 were ordered returned to the National Dock Trust Company of East Boston today by Judge McLaughlin of the Suffolk Superior Court. Judge McLaughlin ruled that the assessed value of property, the company was excessive, and that the company had paid as a result an exorbitant amount of taxes for the years 1920 and 1921.

MRS. SHUMAN FILES SECOND SUPPORT SUIT

Worcester, June 2.—Mrs. Ida Day Shuman, whose suit for separate support against her husband, Harold A. Shuman, wealthy mill owner, and for the custody of the couple's two little girls, was dismissed some months ago, has filed a second suit for support in Probate Court.

The children were awarded to the father and Mrs. Shuman says that he placed them in a private school and put a constable in charge of the Shuman home. She returned to the home, she declares, when the first suit was thrown out, but her husband has refused to live with her.

In her first action, Mrs. Shuman charged that her husband had been friendly with a mill girl, a nurse and the wife of a garage proprietor.

600 QUARTS OF WHISKEY ARE SEIZED

Whiskey is coming into Boston by boat in large quantities, it was revealed today when prohibition enforcement agents intercepted a truck speeding to Lawrence and confiscated 600 quarts of Louis Walker whiskey from Louisville, Ky.

Most of it was in packages of six bottles wrapped in corrugated paper with an outside wrapping of burlap.

The burlap was wet and covered with sand, proving, the agents said, that the liquor had been landed upon a beach around Boston, probably from an ocean-going or coastwise vessel.

The truck was intercepted at Andover. Its driver was arrested and arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes. He is Vincent De Mauro of Commercial street, Boston.

He was held in $500 bail after pleading not guilty to the charge of unlawfully transporting and possessing whiskey. The case was continued to June 9.

Chief Prohibition Officer Roberts said the liquor was the best of its kind his department has seized in three months.

Following the storing of the liquor in a Boston warehouse, agents, headed by Enforcement Chief James F. Roberts, hurried to the Savannah Line vessel City of Atlanta and tore open two of a cargo lot of cotton bales, but found no liquor.

INSURANCE BILL IS BEATEN IN HOUSE

Despite the alleged activities of a powerful lobby, the House today refused to pass the bill which would require every autoist to carry liability insurance in the sum of at least $5,000. The vote against the bill was 95 to 84.

Lobbyists working in behalf of the bill were said to have made the rounds of the down-town hotels last night in an attempt to prevail upon the western county members to vote for the measure.

Stories were being told in the House corridors today of the alleged use of liquor and cigars by the lobbyists. The reports were also being denied so quickly that there was much doubt as to whether the alleged lobbyists employed anything more than the power of argument for the bill.

Representative John J. Mitchell of Springfield asserted in the House today that autos are "mowing down men, women and children." He said that many of the injured persons fell ever to get a penny in compensation of the injuries they suffer.

Representative Henry L. Shattuck of Boston replied that compulsory insurance would never stop recklessness. Most of the money paid for insurance premiums would go to the companies, he said. He declared that the one way to prevent recklessness on the roads is to put the reckless driver behind the bars.

Children Killed by Plague of Locusts

Madrid, June 2 (By International News Service).—A plague of locusts has struck Spain, and reports from the agricultural regions today told of vast damage done to crops.

In some places children were suffocated to death by the locusts, which filled the air. Trains were halted by the locust swarms.

CREW ESCAPES AS FISHERMAN SINKS

Halifax, N. S., June 2.—The Yarmouth fisherman, Loren B. Shaw, one of the best known of the Nova Scotia fresh halibut fleet, foundered ten miles southwest of the Larcher lightship Thursday morning. Captain LeBlanc and his crew reached shore safely in their dories.

The vessel, which was owned by Mayor Walker of Yarmouth, was bound to that port with a catch of 20,000 pounds of fresh halibut after a three-weeks' trip on the Grand Bank. Despite the alleged leaking slightly, but yesterday morning water began to pour into her freely, and the pumps were useless. Her crew took to their dories and rowed ashore in a dense fog. She was built at Lunenburg sixteen years ago.

ASKS $500,000 TO START ON STATION 2

Mayor Curley announced today that on Monday he would send to the City Council a $500,000 loan order for the erection of Police Station 2 on the site already accepted, at Milk and Sears street.

The new building when completed will be one of the best in the country, and will be quite a contrast to the present building in City Hall avenue, unquestionably the worst in the city.

James Purdon, the architect, is completing plans for a ten-story structure of brick and stone. One story will be below the street level, where there will be a rifle range, for machine gun and revolver practice. The upper floors will be turned over to the regular patrolmen, traffic squad and motor cycle squad. A large garage will also be built.

For nearly a dozen years the old City Hall avenue station has been condemned as unfit for human habitation. Fights over the site of a new station were started in the Fitzgerald administration. Many sites were selected, the first being that of the old Probate Court building on Tremont street.

When Mayor Curley took office in his first term, he deemed that this was too valuable a piece of land and he sold it. The next site was that of a building at Arch street and Hawley street place. This was bought by the city for $135,000. November last, the Milk and Sears street site was bought at a cost of $90,000. When finished the entire building, Mayor Curley estimates, will cost the city about $800,000.

Old World Diplomats Still Hope to See U. S. at The Hague

Washington, June 2.—The powers that participated in the fruitless Genoa Conference have not abandoned hope that the United States can be persuaded to go to The Hague June 15 to take part in the deliberations over a world policy towards Russia, it was revealed officially at the State Department.

Ambassadors and ministers from the countries concerned are bringing increased pressure to bear upon the administration to reconsider its refusal to attend.

There are no indications that Washington will deviate from the policy as laid down by Secretary of State Hughes.

PRISONER USED FOG IN LONG ISLAND ESCAPE

How John J. Coughlin, convicted housebreaker, got from Long Island to the mainland last Sunday after escaping from the prisoner's ward in the hospital, was explained today in the story he told following his re-arrest in Stoughton.

Coughlin, twenty-six years old, not very husky, and supposedly ill, stripped off his clothes, secured a log, and swam beside it, pushing it and his clothes along until he got to Moon Island, a swim of over a mile. He gained Neponset, and ultimately his hiding place in Stoughton, where officers from South Boston arrested him yesterday.

Coughlin admitted he had little trouble in getting out of the hospital, as he was considered unable to travel. The young man, whose home is on 12 street, South Boston, will begin again serving a two-and-one-half-year sentence for breaking and entering.

He was sent to Deer Island House of Correction in April and to the hospital in early May. His arrest in Stoughton was largely an accident. South Boston police were raiding a house used as a depot for stolen goods and noticed Coughlin walking down the street.

Visitors to his office at all hours of the day find him a picture of contentment, even amid the burdens of business he must dispose of daily.

LADY HERBERT WILL PAY VISIT TO NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., June 2.—Lady Herbert, whose husband, Sir Arthur Herbert, died last August, will arrive here from London next week to visit her sister, Mrs. T. Shaw-Safe, at Ocean Lawn, for a few weeks. The Princess de Braganza, formerly Miss Anita Stewart, has already arrived and taken up her residence for the Summer at the Reed villa in Bellevue avenue. Mrs. Robert Grosvenor, formerly Miss Aerielle Frost, is at the H. A. Bentley cottage.

PINCHOT WOULD SPEND $120,000 TO WIN AGAIN

Philadelphia, June 2. — Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for Pennsylvania's Governor, who spent a goodly sized fortune to defeat the organized machine of the State, declared that he would spend $120,000 again to do the same thing.

This statement came in reply to criticism by U. S. Senator Harrison, who classified Pinchot's primary expenses as a "second edition" of the Newberry expenses. "The money I spent openly and economically and honestly reported," declared Mr. Pinchot. "The wonder is that an intense machine could be defeated without vastly larger expenditures."

Copenhagen, June 2 (By International News Service).—The Japanese are extending their military occupation of Siberia, according to word received here today from Moscow. Soviet officials at Moscow declare that Japanese troops are advancing along the Manchurian Railway, that they are patrolling the city of Kharbin and that they have taken up new positions in the Siberian maritime provinces.

Business Men—
you must THINK your way now!

TIMES are different. We are doing business now on a falling market. The times call for new and infinitely better salesmanship. Those who understand—those who think their way through the problems that confront them today—will win. They will survive. They will prosper.

If you are one who desires more light, and desires to meet others seeking more light—others who are alert, like you, to the need of a better understanding—then you are invited, regardless of membership in the Association, to attend the great

Eighteenth Annual Convention
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS OF THE WORLD
Milwaukee, June 11 to 15, 1922

HERE is a five-day Forum—a school into which thousands of minds alert to the salesmanship needs of the times—will assemble for the discussion of the very problems that puzzle you every day.

Exhibits of foreign and domestic advertising—visualizing the methods by which others have made advertising more productive—will help point the way. And there will be opportunity to seek answers to your individual problems in sessions of the convention.

STRAPHANGERS BACK 5-CENT FARE DRIVE

Boston straphangers, if you want a five-cent fare, write or see your representatives in the Legislature and tell them so.

That is the advice that is being given today by the leaders in the fight for a five-cent reduction in the present price of rides.

Every man or woman who is interested in cheaper transportation in Greater Boston is urged to get personally behind the movement. A letter or post-card to your representative, giving him your opinion and telling him your wishes will help get what you want.

Grenville S. McFarland, counsel for the Boston American, has drafted two bills, backing up the sentiment of the 160,000 persons who signed this paper's petition for a five-cent fare. Back up these bills.

These measures are supplemental or alternative to the bill for a five-cent fare filed by Mayor Curley. They were offered by Attorney Richard M. Banash on behalf of Mr. MacFarland, who was unable to appear owing to slight illness.

One provides for complete public ownership of the Boston Elevated and immediate restoration of the five-cent fare. The second provides for immediate removal of many expenses of operation and maintenance which benefit autoists and the community as a whole, but which are borne entirely by the car rider.

AN EARLY HEARING.

Speaker B. Loring Young received the measures and said early announcement would be made by the Rules Committee of a date for hearing the new bills.

The two outstanding features of the remonstrants' hearing on the Mayor's bill were:

A decided sentiment, even among the most radical opponents, in favor of a fare reduction, but not by means of added taxation as provided in the Mayor's bill.

Expressed satisfaction with control of the system by the public trustees and a desire to give them more time to work out the problem in their own way.

Mayor Curley and Attorney Sherman L. Whipple did not attend the remonstrants' inning. The Mayor was represented by Attorneys Joseph Lyons and Joseph Lundy, who took no active part in the proceedings.

About 150 attended the session, which was held in the Auditorium. The bitterest attack on the Mayor's measure was made by former Mayor Walter H. Creamer of Lynn, who termed it an "adventure in socialism." Mr. Creamer said "It ought to be called the bill for promoting unemployment in the Metropolitan district, as it would work out that way."

FOR PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

The Boston American's bill providing for public ownership of the Boston Elevated system directs the State Treasurer to invite proposals at once for the sale of the common stock of the Elevated. If a majority of the common stock of the Elevated was offered for sale within ninety days the treasurer would purchase it at once, issuing serial bonds of the State to make the purchase.

The minority holders who later offered their stock for sale would be paid the average price paid for the majority of the holdings.

If less than a majority of outstanding shares was offered for sale within ninety days, the bill provides that "The State Treasurer shall take immediate steps to acquire in the name and on behalf of the Commonwealth all the property and franchises of the Boston Elevated Railway Company through the exercise of the power of eminent domain as provided by the public control law."

Relieved from the payment of the corporate franchise taxes.

BURDENS FROM RIDERS.

The car riders, under the terms of this bill, would be no longer compelled to pay the cost of removing the snow from the streets in the Winter months.

Complete remission of the subway rentals, now amounting to $2,0000,000 a year and paid entirely by the car rider, is provided in another section of the bill.

Provision is also made for the relief of the car rider from the payment of the rentals of the Cambridge tunnel, which is owned by the State.

This section says that its provision shall be submitted to the vote of the people of Cambridge, Newton, Arlington, Belmont and Watertown, who are served especially by the Cambridge tunnel.

Under public ownership, the State would receive the dividends then earned on the common stock. These dividends would be used by the State to pay the interest on the bonds necessary to be issued to buy the road.

FIVE-CENT FARE AT ONCE.

"Upon the acquisition by the Commonwealth of a majority interest in the common stock of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, the trustees shall at once reduce the fare to five cents." Any deficit arising from the operation of the road under the five-cent fare would be advanced by the State treasurer, the State to be reimbursed by the cities and towns in which the road operates.

In the other bill, filed by Mr. MacFarland in the interest of the 160,000 signers of the Boston American five-cent fare petition, it is provided that the car riders would be exempted from paying the State taxes on the Elevated in any year in which the net earnings of the road failed to reach six per cent.

The car riders would also be re-

McINNES NAMED GAS FITTING INSPECTOR

Hector McInnes, well-known referee and sporting man, has been appointed by Mayor Curley as a gasfitting inspector in the building department at $2,000 a year, to fill a vacancy that existed there. Mr. McInnes lives at No. 788 Broadway, South Boston. The Mayor also appointed Frank Gunasso, of No. 47 Hull street, North End, as a gasfitting inspector in the same department at $1,600 a year. HARLEY RECEIVERSHIP DENIED BY COURT

Frank D. Zell's petition for the appointment of a receiver in equity for the Harley Company of Springfield, of which he is a stockholder, has been denied by Judge George W. Anderson, sitting in the United States Equity Court.

HEARST GIVES BRITAIN HIS VIEWS ON FREE ERIN

By Universal Service.
(Special Cable Dispatch.)

London, June 2.—The following interview with William Randolph Hearst appeared in the London Daily Express this morning:

"A Daily Express representative saw Mr. Hearst yesterday at the Savoy Hotel, where he is staying with his wife and sons. The Daily Express representative asked Mr. Hearst why he did not go to Epsom, as all other American visitors do?

"I thank you for asking that question," said Mr. Hearst. "I am so tired of talking about international politics. I was afraid you were going to ask me why I am an enemy of England, which I am not.

"I must refuse to be an enemy of England in spite of the efforts of reporters to make me one. I hope that in time they will learn that there is a distinct difference between being truly devoted to my own country and being hostile to England.

NOT INTERESTED IN RACING.

"To get back to the Derby, I did not go because I am not interested in racing. Once I went to the Derby to see the people more than the race —in fact I left before the race was run. On my way back to London men often ran out from houses along the road to ask me who had won the Derby and when I told them I did not wait to see, it left them in a stunned condition, probably wondering if all Americans were equally mad.

"Sport has a great vogue in America, as much as it has here in England and I think it is of immense importance in the life of a people. American and English are both disposed to work too hard. Thy exhaust their nervous force, do too much brain work and stay too much indoors. I do not think you are overdoing sports in England nor that we are overdoing them in America."

REMEDY FOR UNEMPLOYMENT.

"Is there any remedy for the unemployment that exists in England, do you think?" Mr. Hearst was asked. He replied:

"The chief remedy I suppose, is the restoration of the world to a condition of peace and order, with a resumption of regular industrial and commercial conditions. England, as we all know, is largely a commercial nation, and it is difficult, I suppose, for her to do business in the present disturbed state of international affairs. England's influence is, therefore, all for peace at present, and in this respect at least she has the sympathetic support of most of our people in America. The course of Lloyd George at the Genoa conference has been very generally admired on this account in our country. We think you have a very great man in Lloyd George."

VIEWS ON IRISH PROBLEM.

"What are your views concerning the solution of the Irish problem?" asked the Express representative.

Mr. Hearst said: "I think the Irish problem is a matter for Ireland and England to solve and that it would be very unwise for any outsider at this time to voice any views as to details of that solution. But I think I may say in a general way that I consider a satisfactory solution of the Irish problem quite as important to England as it is to Ireland.

"It would seem to me that the whole future of the British Empire depended upon the maturing of a plan under which the component parts of the empire may be kept willingly, loyally, and enthusiastically parts of the confederation. If this cannot be done the British Empire has no real cohesion. The British Empire is rich in possessions but it seems to me that in these democratic days possessions held by force of arms are not assets but liabilities.

MATTER OF SYMPATHY.

"The Irish question in the United States is merely a matter of sympathy on the part of our people for another people struggling for the rights and liberties which we possess and which we would be glad to see all nations of the world possess in equal measure.

"The sympathy of our people for Ireland is very genuine. We think Ireland has been misused, misgoverned and mistreated and regarded as a subject nation rather than as an integral part of the British Empire.

"We feel that differences of temperament, differences of religion and so forth, have been a denial of liberties and opportunities to the Irish, and this condition has created a schism which it is very difficult to repair.

"If it can be repaired, however, it seems to me that this is the time to endeavor to repair a denial of liberties and opportunities to the Irish, and this condition has created a schism which it is very difficult to repair.

"If it can be repaired, however, it seems to me that this is the time to endeavor to repair a denial of liberties and opportunities to the Irish, and this condition has created a schism which it is very difficult to repair.

GIRL CANDY WORKER TAKES DOSE OF POISON

Susie Carso, nineteen years old, of No. 78 Prince street, is in the Haymarket Relief Hospital in a critical condition f om drinking poison. The girl took the poison in front of her home and collapsed on the sidewalk immediately afterwards. Her parents gave no reason for her rash act. She was employed in a North End candy factory.

WRESTLER GARDINI TO WED RICH GIRL

RENATO GARDINI AND FIANCEE

Miss Edith M. Di Pietro, daughter of the President of the Commercial Bank of Boston, and Gardini will be married June 20.

"Renato is fierce in fight but a wondrously tender lover."

This is the softer side of Renato Gardini, the professional wrestler, revealed by Edith Di Pietro, Boston girl, who he is to marry here on June 20 next.

Miss Pietro is a member of the Junior League, the Chatterbox and various clubs of Boston's younger set. She was the first girl in Boston to stage a wrestling bout, when she presented the match between Gardini and Linow in the interests of the Boston College drive.

Her father is president of the Commercial Bank of Boston. The family home is at No. 72 Homestead street, Roxbury.

Accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gardini, the sweetheart of the wrestler filed marriage intentions at City Hall.

In the boudoir of her Roxbury home, Miss Di Pietro has an album. In it are the photos of many men. But it is her proud boast that they are not of former suitors but are the pictures of the men Gardini has defeated.

"I have seen him wrestle many times and I admire his prowess in the throwing of men, trained in body and mind and eye," she declared. "In his chosen profession he is fierce, relentless, but all-wave fair. At home he is the true type of lover.

The wedding will be held in St. Leonard's Church, North End, and will be followed by a reception at the Vendome. Fr. Anthony, the Franciscan pastor, who christened Edith eighteen years ago, will perform the ceremony.

Immediately following the wedding the couple will entrain for New York, from whence they will sail to Europe for their honeymoon. They will visit Gardini's mother at his birthplace in Italy.

SAILOR CRAZED BY DRUG TRIES TO CLIMB WALLS

Abraham Schraiman, a sailor attached to an oil tanker in port, was found trying to climb the walls of his room at the Hotel Argonne today and taken to the Joy street station suffering from the effects of an overdose of cocaine. When apprehended two vials of the drug, bearing the label of a Mexican firm, were found in his pockets.

SCHOONER HENRY FORD SAILS ON MAIDEN TRIP

Gloucester, June 2.—The schooner Henry Ford, prospective challenger for honors in the International Fishermen's Cup races next Fall, sailed on her maiden fishing trip from here today. The schooner carried 190 tons of ballast, including ice and salt. She will head for Sydney, N. S., for bait and then will go to the banks. All doubt as to the eligibility of the craft to enter the races next Fall has been removed, according to authorities here.

PRINTERS WILL ASK HARDING TO BOSTON

President Harding will be invited to attend the Second Educational Graphic Arts Exposition to be held in Mechanics Hall during the week of August 28—September 2, it was announced today. Mayor Curley agreed to head a delegation to Washington during the week of June 18 to tender the invitation.

The exposition will be under the auspices of the Boston Clubs of Printing House Craftsmen, who will be assisted by the Third Annual Convention of the International Association of Printing House Craftsmen.

More than 14,000 printing shops, representing more than 40 per cent. of the printing industry, are located with a day's ride from Boston. It is expected more than 100,000 persons will attend the exposition.

FIND NO FIREPLACES IN OLD PROVINCE HOUSE

The wish of Governor Channing H. Cox for the preservation of a fireplace of the old Province House will have to go ungratified, for visitors to the old house have been unable to discover a sign of a fireplace in the bare brick walls. Governor Cox wishes the legislature to appropriate money to have a fireplace removed from the house and "restored" at the State House or some other State building. The walls show where three fireplaces were solidly bricked up seventy or more years ago, in each case with a huge hand hewn oak log imbedded in the wall to support the weight of the chimney, but no fireplaces.

IMMIGRATION OFFICE NOT NOTIFIED OF CHANGE

Immigration Commissioner Johnson said today he had received no official notice of the Department of Labor's intention of removing the Boston immigration station from the new building at Jeffrey's Point to the Army Base in South Boston. Press dispatches from Washington quote Commissioner-General W. W. Husband as saying that the transfer would be made immediately. The new station in East Boston was built at a cost of nearly $500,000 during the peak of high prices. It has proved inadequate and not suited to its purposes.

Long Life Possible on 3 Vegetables, Prince Avers

Paris, June 2.—Radishes, tomatoes and nuts contain all the ingredients of perfect food, and if nothing else were eaten they would ensure long life.

This prescription was given to Universal Service today by Prince Troubetsky, the sculptor, who has announced that he is selling his villa at Hollywood because the "feverish pulse of studios prevents the true simple life."

He is now refitting his palace on the shore of Lake Maggiore in Italy, where he intends to live entirely upon the products of his garden, eating them uncooked.

CONDITION OF COUNTY PAYMASTER SERIOUS

County Paymaster Edward J. Sullivan of South Boston, who was stricken with a shock Wednesday night, is resting comfortably at the City Hospital.

Edward J. Sullivan

He regained consciousness long enough to tell City Treasurer John J. Curley the combination of the safe, which contained his accounts and money. Dr. John J. Dowling, superintendent of the hospital, announced that Mr. Sullivan's condition is very serious. His chances for recovery are slightly better than the average man because of his wonderful physique.

NEWPORT YACHT BACK FROM WORLD CRUISE

The yacht went through the Panama Canal, visiting Japan, China and East Indian ports and thence to Marseilles, France. There Commodore and Mrs. James left the yacht, touring France and England. They are returning by steamship.

DIPHTHERIA TEST GIVEN 524 BOSTON CHILDREN

Dr. John A. Ceconi, epidemiologist of the Health Department, has Schick tested for diphtheria 524 children ranging in age from three to fourteen since May 6. Out of this number 324 were found susceptible to diphtheria. The remainder were found immune. These tests assure better protection to those needing it by further injections of a harmless vaccine. Interest in Dr. Ceconi's work is shown by the many requests for the application of the test. Dr. Ceconi says proper interest by the public and physicians will do much to curb diphtheria.

YOUTH CALM AS HE ARRIVES AT DEATH HOUSE

Rocco Scicchitani to Die for Killing Cambridge Policeman

Calmly puffing a cigarette, Rocco Scicchitani, twenty-six years old, was taken to the death house in Charlestown State Prison today. He is under sentence to die in the electric chair during the week of June 11, for the murder of Patrolman Thomas J. Riley of Cambridge. The murder was on November 21, 1920.

The condemned man, dressed in a neat brown suit and cap, with gray suede low cut shoes, who has been confined at the East Cambridge Jail since his trial, arrived at the prison at 11:30 o'clock this morning in an automobile, handcuffed to Sheriff Fairbairn of Middlesex County.

Sheriff Fairbairn told Warden Shattuck that while at the East Cambridge Jail, Scicchitani had proved a model prisoner. At the time of his arrest he was unable to read or write English, but has since learned to do both fairly well.

Rev. Michael J. Murphy, the prison chaplain, told the prisoner that he would have an Italian priest as spiritual adviser.

Scicchitani lighted a cigarette and calmly continued puffing at it but without bravado during the walk of several hundred feet along the wall leading from the prison office to the death house.

He was placed in Cell 1, the same one occupied by Charles L. Tucker and Clarence V. T. Richardson during their last days. The cell is within ten feet of the electric chair, but at an angle to it, so that the prisoner can not very easily see it from his cell.

Deputy Warden Hendry brought the prisoner a new tailor made suit of gray to wear until the time of his execution.

Scicchitani bade Sheriff Fairbairn farewell and thanked him for his kind treatment while under his charge.

He was sentenced to death in the electric chair by Judge John F. Brown. At the time of his sentence he said through an interpreter, "I am innocent; he shot me first."

U. S. SUES FIRM FOR $295,051

Suit for recovery of $295,051.63, alleged excess profits claimed by the government, was begun in the Federal Court today by U. S. Attorney Robert O. Harris against Brown & Adams, wool dealers, No. 259 Summer street. The government alleges that in 1918 the defendants made the sum named and that formal demand for it under the War Industries Board regulations was refused by the firm.

The government claims that repeated demands for the payment of the money were refused and that it brings this court action to force restoration of the money.

ANTI-DRUG BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

The anti-drug bill, filed with the Legislature as the result of the nation-wide campaign conducted by the Hearst newspapers to suppress the alarming increase in the use of habit-forming drugs, was passed by the State Senate today.

The bill went through three committees of the Legislature and through the House without a vote being cast against it. The bill won unanimous support in every legislative stage.

It was filed by Representative Samuel H. Wragg of Needham, and was in charge of Senator Gardner W. Pearson of Lowell, the chairman of the Legislative Committee on Public Health.

The bill will reach Governor Cox early next week. His inaugural address contained a powerful recommendation for the passage of new laws to curb the drug evil.

The bill imposes drastic penalties upon vicious people who ply the drug trade. The illegal possession of a hypodermic syringe or other implement for the use of habit-forming drugs is made punishable by a fine of $100 or by imprisonment for two years, or by both fine and imprisonment.

Any person who has a drug illegally in his possession with the intent to sell can be sent to jail from one to two and one-half years or to prison for five years.

The keeper of a place which is resorted to by habitual users of drugs can be imprisoned from three months to two yeares.

The outstanding feature of the bill is the provision it makes for the cure of addicts. Under existing laws, an addict can be committed for treatment only if he is found guilty of some offence and is thereby branded as a criminal.

The new bill allows the addict to go to a State Hospital, where he will be given the treatment that will permit him to throw off the habit and to become again a useful member of society.

A fur-storage tip from an Arctic explorer

KNUD RASMUSSEN, in his book on Greenland, states that the Polar Eskimo never takes his fox fur coat into his hut, but keeps it in a stone cave. In this way it is not subjected to sudden changes of temperature, which would rapidly ruin the delicate fur.

If you store your furs in the cold storage vaults in our Cambridge building, they will hang in a temperature uniformly below freezing point.

And in addition to all the advantages of other first-class fur storage is the added advantage of a while you wait delivery service, next fall. By calling at the Cambridge building you can have your furs in five minutes, "while-you-wait." 1100 of our customers enjoyed this convenience last year. And 7000 had their furs delivered to their homes within twenty-four hours.

Telephone Beach 3800, fur shop, and we will send for your furs.

PUT HOOTCH IN PUNCH FOR PUPILS

Providence, June 2.—Who put moonshine in the fruit punch at the annual social of the junior class of the East Providence High School?

The school committee and the faculty know, but they are keeping the matter secret, while holding the affair under advisement.

Here's what happened: The social was in full swing and the big punch bowl filled with fruit punch, carefully prepared, and under the watchful eye of the teachers, was the centre of attraction, when two boys slyly poured into the punch the contents of a bottle of moonshine.

The fumes of the "hootch" assailed the noses of the teachers almost immediately and George Fuller, school janitor, was called in.

He identified the odor as "hootch" without hesitation and the contents of the bowl were dumped out of the window and the bowl refilled with a proper mixture.

According to a statement today by Superintendent of Schools J. R. D. Oldham, "few of the students had an opportunity to drink any" of the contaminated liquid in the bowl, "and no one in an amount that had any injurious effect."

The boys, the superintendent says, "were questioned and admitted their guilt. The matter is under consideration of the school committee and of the school faculty."

BRITISH WILL RULE TROOPS IN ULSTER

London, June 2 (By the Associated Press).—A British regiment which returned from Ireland in February left Plymouth today for Belfast.

London, June 2.—The advisability of a British military offensive campaign against the Irish republicans on the Ulster frontier is under consideration by the war office today. Following a conference with Earl Balfour, acting Foreign Minister, Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, made the following statement to the International News Service:

"It has been decided to place entire control of the British troops in Ulster in the hands of the British war office, which will decide whether it is necessary to take the offensive against the republicans or cross the Ulster border into the Free State."

It is reported that British troops quartered at Newry have been rushed from that district to the district of Louth to aid hard-pressed constables, who were engaged with the Republicans on a mile-wide front. At no time since the signing of the Anglo-Irish peace treaty has the Irish situation been so acute. The chief elements are the following:

FIGHTING IN PROGRESS.

British Cabinet finds the proposed Irish Free State constitution and the Collins - De Valera coalition agreement unacceptable.

Heavy fighting is in progress along the Ulster boundary between Republicans and Ulsterites with the growing threat that it will develop into actual civil war.

Members of the Ulster government in London refuse to treat with the representatives of the Irish Free State, so Earl Balfour, acting Foreign Secretary, has been named mediator.

Possibility exists that British troops in Ulster will undertake an aggressive campaign against the Republicans along the Ulster border.

Downing street officials appeared to be a trifle more optimistic this afternoon, but they admitted that their entire hope rested upon Michael Collins.

Downing street officials said that if Collins could secure a revision of the proposed Irish constitution to include an oath of allegiance the Cabinet would be satisfied.

PREMIER GOING TO WALES.

Premier Lloyd George plans to leave tonight for Criccieth, Wales, for a short vacation unless a tentative understanding is reached by night. It is likely that the Irish solution will be delayed for some days. Arthur Griffith, President of the Dail Eireann, will leave London tonight for Dublin. Mr. Griffith promised the Premier that, within the next week, he would send to Downing street a considered statement from De Valera, regarding revision of the Irish Constitution.

Collins gave International News Service the following statement: "The conference is off for the time being. I am going back to Dublin at once. The exercise of ordinary common sense will help bring about a settlement. What is the sense of fighting if fighting can be avoided? Our position is difficult, but it is not impossible of solution. Ireland today occupies a position similar to that before the Anglo-Irish Treaty was signed."

Policemen Slain in Ulster Border Battle

Belfast, June 2 (By the Associated Press).Heavy firing between Irish Republican Army forces and Ulster special constables occurred during the night at Dungooley Cross, on the Louth-Armagh border. It lasted seven hours, and it is believed three of the specials were killed. The inhabitants along the border in the vicinity have fled to Dundalk.

Firing also occurred at Culleville, going on for several hours.

In Irish Republican Army quarters it was stated that the Republican forces suffered no casualties in either clash.

Many Catholics are reported to have left Belfast, fearing for their lives.

The British destroyer Warwick, which yesterday searched the steamer Craigbue in Lough Foyle, off the northern Londonderry coast, hailed two other vessels bound for Londonderry and warned them not to stop anywhere unless so ordered by warships. It is reported that the provisional government in Dublin is contesting Great Britain's right to search ships in these waters.

When a gang forced the door of a doctor's residence in the southern side of the city they were told by the servant, Susan McCormick, that he was not at home. Thereupon they poured a can of petrol over her and set her clothing afire.

She ran screaming into the street, where neighbors extinguished the flames, but not before she had been severely burned. She was taken to a hospital in a serious condition.

Coalition Candidates Prepare for Election

Dublin, June 2 (By International News Service).—The proposed Coalition Government of the Irish Free State (Parliament and Cabinet) will consist of 176 members, it was reported today.

Already Coalition candidates have begun to announce their determination to run in the forthcoming election. It is understood that the Coalition will be made up about as follows:

In favor of the Anglo-Irish peace treaty, 66; against the Anglo-Irish peace treaty, 49; Laborites, 17; Farmer, 25; Independents, 3.

—Fresh From Paris—
Latest From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

THE smartest of Summer morning costumes chooses heavy white crepe marocain as its tissue. The charm of straight lines is emphasized by a wide girdle of the crepe marocain laid in folds across the front so that the ends when extended over one hip make a pinked ruffle trimmed with a line of ivory buttons. A chic sports hat of green felt has the very edge of its brim finished with white straw.

THE black and white combination that Paris is finding satis factory in so many kinds of costumes is never more appealing than when used in a sport's vein. In the sketch above at the right, white satin makes the tailored blouse worn over a black cloth skirt with girdle and short sash ends of black moire. The filled-in surplice neckline and the full sleeve caught into tight wristbands are severe enough to be in spirit with the costume, and decorative enough to relieve it.

DRUG WOMAN AND ROB HER OF $2,000

New Bedford, June 2.—Mrs. Marie Meura was drugged by two men who then robbed her of $2,000 and left her lying unconscious in her home at No 36 Deane street, according to a story she told the police.

She said that the men posed as perfume salesmen and handed her a bottle to smell. She did not know anything more until an hour later she was revived by her brother-in-law. Then she found her $2,000, withdrawn from the bank a day or two previously, was missing.

It is believed that the men knew Mrs. Meura had the money on hand as they evidently went directly to her house at a time when no other person was in the place. A canvass of the neighborhood by police disclosed that they had not visited any other home.

William Faversham is Sued by Mother

New York, June 2.—William Faversham, actor, is the defendant in a suit brought against him by his mother in law, Mrs. Mary Opp, in which she is seeking to set aside a series of conveyances, mortgages and bonds covering residential property in West 17th street. Mrs. Opp declares that Faversham and his wife, the late Julia Opp, induced her to execute documents by false representations.

Mrs. Opp declares that she relied on the representations of her son-in-law, who was "possessed of knowledge of worldly affairs," while she had scant business experience.

They were secretly married several months ago and are on their way to Japan on a honeymoon.

CLAIMS FIANCE BEAT HIS AGED FATHER

"There's not a single word of truth in anything he says about me," declared sixteen-year-old Eleanor Burke of Roxbury today, in denying charges brought against her by her former fiance, Frederick Jenner of No. 81 Centre street, Roxbury.

Miss Burke was arraigned on the charge of larceny of money from Jenner in the Juvenile Court and the case continued for two weeks.

"I was going to marry him to get a home for my baby brother," the girl explained, "and not because I loved him.

"Then after my mother died and I went to live at his home with his sister and mother, and I saw how he drank and quarreled and fought with his mother and sister and father, I decided that even for Jimmy I couldn't.

"My aunt got me a job with M. A. E. Ricker, owner of a hotel at Poland Springs. So I left the Jenner house and went to work for Mr. Ricker as a waitress in his hotel. I worked there until last Saturday, when I came to Boston to see my brother. Then I found out that Mr. Jenner had got a warrant for my arrest on a charge of larceny. He also had complained that Mr. Ricker and I had been guilty of violation of the law.

"All of those charges are false. So are the statements that I wanted to smoke in his house and that I sneaked out after half past eleven and stayed out all night. In fact, everything he has said about me is untrue, and will be proved false when the case against me comes up in the Juvenile Court.

"My mother died in March, and as she had given her death-bed permission for me to marry Mr. Jenner and as his mother asked me to go to live at his house, I went there. It was awful. One night Frederick beat his father unconscious and when the old man came to, he screamed and yelled that he was dying. Another time Frederick stormed and raged about the house and threatened to 'belt me in the face.'

"Once he gave me $55 and when I left I returned him $30 of this, together with a ring and a watch that he had given me. That's the money he charged I stole from him. That charge is as false as all the rest."

OWN PARTY MEN BRAND LA FOLLETTE DISLOYAL

Milwaukee, June 2.—Dr. W. A. Ganfield, president of Carroll College, Waukesha, today was in the field as choice of the Citizens State Republican convention to oppose Senator Robert M. La Follette. The convention adopted a platform in which it denounced radicalism and approved the stand of the United States in the war. One resolution, unanimously adopted, declared:

"The vital issue in the State of Wisconsin is to efface and forever eliminate the shame and disgrace that became attached to this great Commonwealth through the disloyalty of Senator La Follette.

"He was not true to his country in the time of its extreme need and peril; he failed to act when patriotic action was imperative and by his public utterance and open opposition to participation in the World War he has shown himself unfit to represent the State."

MOB THREATENS TO HANG UMPIRE

By Associated Press.

Three Rivers, Que., June 2.—If Umpire Bruneau, who evidently has faith in his own convictions, is on the job today when Three Rivers and Valleyfield clubs of the Eastern Canada League meet, he may expect to step into a cauldron of boiling pitch when he leaves the field at the end of the game.

Yesterday he called some close ones against Three Rivers, resulting in the loss of the game by the home team and a close call for Mr. Bruneau, who nearly lost his neck. A mob of wild-eyed fans dangling a rope with a noose waited for him outside the park. A squad of police escorted him to his hotel.

Harry Poules, owner of the local club, washed his hands of the sacrificial blood of Mr. Bruneau today, telegraphing President Joe Page of the Eastern Canada League, that if the same arbiter officiates today he will not be responsible for the "mobbing" that he says is positive to occur.

POLICEMAN FIRES AT PRISONER

William Vincent, arrested on Bulfinch street, with Blanche Pugsl, attempted to escape as he was being taken to the Joy street station today by Patrolman Andrew J. Mullin and was stopped by a shot from the revolver of Patrolman Connaughton of the same station.

At Cambridge and Bulfinch street on his way to the station the prisoner jerked himself loose from the grip of Patrolman Mullin and dashed off, with Mullin in pursuit. As they turned into Temple street, Patrolman Connaughton saw them coming and fired one shot from his revolver across the path of the fleeing man. That halted Vincent, who made no further trouble.

Rev. George A. Tewksbury, pastor emeritus of the Trinitarian Congregational Church, Concord, quietly observed the eighty-third anniversary of his birth today. FIREMEN PULL BOY FROM JAWS OF DEATH

By Associated Press.

New York, June 2.—Two firemen —one acting battalion chief and the other his chauffeur—today made one of the most daring rescues in the history of the department.

Michael Kramer, five years old, fleeing with his parents from a blaze in a lower West Side tenement, toppled from a narrow plank which had been placed over a five-foot chasm between the roofs of two buildings, and fell into the "well" formed by the walls of the structures.

David J. Oliver, acting battalion chief, heard the lad's moans. Seizing a rickety ladder found on the roof, he ordered his driver, William A. Fraser to hold it and lower him into the "well," which was belching smoke. Fraser braced himself against the coping while his superior, a heavy man, swayed and groped in the darkness.

The ladder was not quite long enough and Oliver had to cling to the lower rung by one hand. Water meanwhile was filling the "well," but finally Oliver grasped the unconscious boy and held him while Fraser, with almost superhuman strength, slowly dragged both up to the roof.

GARY GRILLED ON MERGERS IN STEEL

By International News Service

New York, June 2.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, was questioned by Samuel Untermeyer, counsel for the Lockwood Committee, regarding the proposed Lackawana-Bethlehem and the three-company merger announced by Thomas L. Chadbourne when he took the stand today in the resumed steel merger hearings.

Judge Gary said he would be glad to furnish the committee with any of the records of the United States Steel Corporation, declaring the corporation was a believer in "pitiless publicity." He said the corporation's total outstanding stock issues amounted to $360,000,000, of which $350,000,000 is preferred.

After reading testimony by Mr. Hickey, in which he said the merger was merely under discussion, Mr. Untermeyer said:

"Hardly had they left the witness stand when an announcement was made regarding the proposed merger, stating the amount, stock and all details. These gentleman have not been very frank with the committee. They have been asked to come back. I am going to require them to explain their action.

Judge Gary admitted bidding for structural steel will be limited by the proposed mergers. The bank balance of the Steel Corporation, he testified, on January 1 of this year was $125,000,000. Of this amount $5,000,000 was on deposit with J. P. Morgan & Co., on which the Steel Corporation received 2.6 per cent. interest.

SHAM BATTLE IN SOMERVILLE TOMORROW

Ten thousand spectators are expected at the first annual field day of the reorganized 101st Engineers, Massachusetts National Guard, at the Dilboy Field, Alewife Brook Parkway, Somerville, tomorrow evening.

Major M. H. Leonard, who is in charge of preparations and program, announced today that all plans are complete and that the affair will be one of the biggest things of its kind ever attempted in this vicinity.

There are to be more than 1,000 men in the regiment taking part in the demonstrations of the very latest things in modern warfare, and the regular army officers have given their cordial support to the plan for the field day.

The program begins punctually at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening, with a competitive drill by companies for the General Clarence R. Edwards trophy, military and athletic events.

At eight o'clock there will be a formal parade and retreat, followed by a short concert from the famous 101st Engineer's Band. At nine o'clock the battle of Alewife Brook will start.

While this is going on more than $5,000 worth of trench pyrotechnics, including very lights, star shells, and colored artillery and airplane signals will be used.

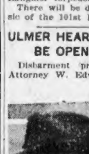
The enemy will be fortified across the brook opposite the grandstands. The attack will be made in mass rushes, supported by a barrage of artillery fire, rifle and machine guns and hand grenades.

The attackers will be forced to bridge the creek, will be driven back and their bridge destroyed by dynamite. They will attack again, using 3 Lambert Floating foot bridges, cut through a belt of barbed wire with Bangalor torpedoes and finally win.

There will be dancing to the music of the 101st Regiment Band.

ULMER HEARING WILL BE OPENED ON JUNE 8

Disbarment proceedings against Attorney W. Edwin Ulmer of this city from practicing in the Federal Court will commence on Thursday, June 8, according to Assistant U. S. Attorney Charles P. Curtis, Jr., who filed the petition for Ulmer's disbarment several weeks ago. Judge Morris of the Federal Court will preside over the hearing.



Atty. W. Edwin Ulmer.

In assigning this date the previsions was made, however, that the case will be indefinitely continued if Ulmer is on that date defending action against him in the State courts.

The petition for Ulmer's disbarment charges him with attempting to deceive the court in numerous instances growing out of the litigation in the Federal Court on the Wahan Ross Conservatories and the Henry Woods Sons Company cases.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Braggiotti Sisters to Entertain at Dance Recital

By BETTY ALDEN.

It is safe to say that a fashionable audience will attend the dancing recital which the Misses Berthe and Francesca Braggiotti are giving tomorrow afternoon in Jordan Hall, and this despite the fact that no less than four important nuptial events crowd tomorrow's social calendar.

Many a charity coffer has been considerably increased by the very clever dancing of these two attractive sisters. In fact, few and far between are the benefit functions where the names of Berthe and Francesca Braggiotti are not included on the program.

Some time ago these two girls opened a private dancing studio at their home on Upland road, Brookline, and immediately families of the far-famed "four hundred" sent their youngsters there to learn the intricacies of terpsichore. And now Boston's fashionable contingent is to have a chance, at today's recital, to ascertain for themselves the progress of the Misses Braggiotti's dancing school, as well as having the pleasure of seeing the two clever interpreters of terpsichore dance several numbers themselves.

Berthe Braggiotti, by the way, is one of the members of the Vincent Club's executive committee. Everyone who attended the club's recent show, "Now and Then," recalls very vividly the beautiful dance, called "L'heure Exquise," given by the two sisters, as well as the "Candle Dance," for which Francesca Braggiotti made such a lovely "flame."

AN Oriental scene will feature prominently in the second part of the clever program which the Braggiotti girls are putting on at Jordan Hall tomorrow.

In this number Berthe Braggiotti will take the part of an Oriental princess and will do a dance of the Far East. There will be nine fat, stolid Buddhas in the scene, to which the "Princess" will pray. During the course of the program, Francesca Braggiotti will enter as the "Spirit of the Prayer" and do a dance suggestive of the lure and mystery of the Orient.

Another unique feature will be a futurist dance or "impression," especially arranged for the two society dancers by two Russian youths, who have also designed the scenery and costumes for the number.

The program will open with a "Scene from Fairyland," in which the greater portion of the pupils will take part. Later on comes a "Divertissement" number, in which all the pupils will give dances, and a "Peasant Scene" will close the program. It will be during this last scene that the Braggiotti girls will do their famous "Reapers' Dance," in which they scored such great success last Summer, both at Lenox and later on in New York. They are also to do an "Italian Tarantelle," which is said to be particularly good.

Among the youthful pupils who are to take part in the recital tomorrow are Miss Constance Brewer, daughter of Mrs. Frank Brewer; the two little Blake girls, daughters of the Arthur Blakes of Dedham; Miss Mary Marjory Loring, Miss Evelyn Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walker of Upland road, Brookline, whose older daughter, Miss Katherine Walker, was married earlier in the month to Mr. Bradford of New York; also Miriam Winsiow and Elizabeth Redmond.

THOSE who own the magnificent estates along the North Shore are always finding new ways of making their grounds more attractive.

The Richard T. Cranes, Jr., whose Summer home at Ipswich is known as "Castle Hill," have transferred about a dozen beautiful deer to the rolling meadows of their place. There is a tiny forest of pine trees on one side, to which the timid creatures flee whenever they become frightened by the passing machines.

Apropos of the North Shore, members of the cottage colony there are missing a familiar sight these days, for Miss Katherine Abbott, daughter of the Gordon Abbotts of Beacon street and Manchester, has sailed for abroad. Miss Abbott was hardly ever without her yellow machine, a cross between a truck and a jitney, in which she dashed up and down the Shore quite frequently.

Brady, the American theatrical producer, are being congratulated by their friends on the part they played in rounding up a band of young desperadoes, which was led by a woman. SOMERVILLE MEN BANDIT VICTIMS

Police of Somerville are looking for a slim stranger, dressed in a dark blue suit and wearing a cap who, Paul O'Reilly and Charles E. Reynolds of Marshall street, Somerville, say, held them up and robbed them of nearly $300.

According to the story of the two men, the stranger appeared suddenly in front of them, pointed a pistol at them and demanded they throw up their hands.

They did, and O'Reilly handed over $6 and Reynolds $280. Reynolds explained that he is treasurer of the Brotherhood of Railroad Carmen and that the money was the property of the Brotherhood, which he had just collected. The holdup took place on Marshall street, near Mortimer place, the men claim.

WALSH WARNS OF EFFORTS TO BLOCK BONUS

By International News Service.

Washington, June 2.—A warning that the prospective bonus legislation was "certain to encounter many difficulties before its final passage," and any attempt to postpone consideration of it until after the tariff bill is disposed of would imperil its enactment at this session, was voiced by Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Democratic member of the Senate Finance Committee, in a statement issued today.

"The opposition to bonus legislation is powerful enough, although when the final vote is taken its opponents will be comparatively few," said Senator Walsh.

SEES DANGER IN DELAY.

"There are many, however, who are only half-hearted in their support and many who would like to see it rejected, but are not willing to be known as active in the opposition to it. Such a condition always encourages inaction and delay.

"From the outset this opposition has had the most money and the most influence behind it, but fortunately there are more than enough votes to overthrow it once we get the bonus to a vote.

"Certain opponents of the bonus propose to prevent it from being taken up until the tariff bill is disposed of. Their purpose is to defeat the bonus by postponement and delay."

An increasing number of Republican and Democratic Senators were lining up today behind a straightout cash soldiers' bonus as a substitute for the McCumber insurance certificate plan.

FAVORS CASH PAYMENT.

Senator Bursum, Republican, of New Mexico, is preparing to press his cash bonus bill, which the Senate Finance Committee ignored. He is understood to have received assurances of support from at least fifteen of his Republican colleagues and from even a larger number on the Democratic side.

The Bursum bill would provide payment in cash of 50 per cent. of the compensation due service men immediately after its passage, and the balance not later than five years afterward.

"If we intended we owe our service men something, we should not delay liquidating our debt to them," said Bursum. "We should not stipulate they must be contented with promises to pay, payable at the end of twenty years, but we should frankly acknowledge our debt to them and arrange to pay cash to those who desire or need cash without attaching any strings to the payments."

WALSH MOVES TO PROTECT COAL BUYER

Washington, June 2.—Secretary Hoover was called on in a resolution offered by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusets, and adopted today by the Senate, to report the effect of the strike on coal prices and what steps the government had taken to terminate the strike and to protect consumers from exorbitant prices.

Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican, New Jersey, said his similar resolution had been blocked three times by Senator Walsh, but he did not object to passage of the Walsh resolution.

Having obtained agreement among operators producing 20 per cent. of the bituminous coal now being mined to restrict spot prices to a maximum of $3.50 a ton for the duration of the strike, Secretary Hoover was understood today to be considering a conference of wholesale and retail coal dealers to discuss means of insuring to the public the benefits of the price agreements.

WEEKS URGES LAWS TO CURB AVIATORS

Washington, June 2.—The commercial aviator who joined unbidden in the dedication ceremonies Tuesday at Lincoln memorial has awakened a train of official reflection which may end in comprehensive national legislation for policing the air.

Indignant at the action of the Memorial Day pilot, who drowned out a large portion of President Harding's address by circling low about the memorial, Secretary Weeks of the War Department has written the President suggesting that Congress be asked to enact a code of air rules of the road.

In the instance of the aviator who broke into fame on Memorial Day, Secretary Weeks thinks he has found a method of punishment which will not require action by Congress. The department believes they have identified the offending pilot as a reserve army officer. Department officials say that not even a court martial would be necessary in these circumstances to take away a reserve commission.

NO ACTION ON MUSCLE SHOALS THIS SESSION

Washington, June 2.—Congress will not reach a decision on disposal of the government Muscle Shoals nitrate project at the present session, it was declared today by Congressional leaders. The action of Henry Ford in challenging Congress to an immediate decision on his revised offer, while disconcerting his opposition, will not bring about a favorable decision, according to House leaders.

HITCH OVER PLAN FOR BILLION GERMAN LOAN

Paris, June 2.—Negotiations of international bankers regarding a $1,000,000,000 consortium for Germany have struck a snag. There were indications today the Germans will not get a great international loan despite the favorable reply they have returned to the demands of the Inter-Allied Reparations Commission.

SAMMY AND HIS PALS

It was a wild night. The rain was falling by the bucketfull—well, maybe not quite so bad as that, but anyhow it was raining hard. Our old friend Sam and his little chum Goggles were sitting in their cosy bungalow when suddenly they heard the voices of John the Jollier and the other members of the Hand-Out Club lifted in the following plaintive musical composition:

"We're ragged, hungry, sore and lame;
We haven't got a cent!
And everywhere that we have came They're glad when we have went!"

"John," said Sam, in a tone of kindly bonhomie, mixed with a little bienveillances, "I'm sorry for you boys. Here's a piece of angel cake and a few lady fingers. You can sleep on the back porch if you wish. But remember, I've got burglar alarms all over the house, so don't try any Jack Sheppard stuff!" You see, Sam knew those lads. Why, they wouldn't think of prying open a kitchen door and going through the ice box. At that moment an ear piercing scream was—

BRITAIN TO PAY U. S. INTEREST THIS FALL

London, June 2 (By Associated Press).—The government has completed arrangements to pay during the coming Fall interest amounting to £25,000,000 on the British debt to the United States. It has not yet been decided whether a special mission will be sent to Washington to discuss the debt with the American Government.

The British Cabinet is preparing a bill to fill all the demands and conditions contained in the Washington Treaty for naval limitation, the Daily News revealed today.

The British Admiralty is so confident of ratification of the Washington Treaty that it has already begun to dismantle ships.

3 GIRLS HURT BY FLYING MAIL BOX

Three Medford schoolgirls were knocked down and injured today when a letter box was hurled twenty feet following a collision between an automobile and a motor truck in which one machine was forced against an electric light pole.

The girls are: Ethel Ramsdell fifteen years old, of No. 40 Edward street, her sister, Lillian, fourteen, and Grace Conway, fourteen, of No. 34 Court street.

Ethel Ramsdell was badly lacerated about the limbs and her head cut. She was taken home in a police ambulance. Her companions sustained minor cuts and bruises.

The machines in the collision were a touring car driven by John E. Perry of South street and a truck driven by John Capanino of Fulton street, both Medford.

The touring car was sent crashing against the pole, dislocating the letter box and driving it with terrific force directly in the path of the girls.

The accident occurred at Park and Salem streets.

REVEL 'FRAMED,' SAYS MOTHER OF ACTRESS

"It a frameup. Geneva was the victim of circumstances and her release from the "Sally" company came after members of the cast had tried for weeks to put her in a bad light with Mr. Ziegfeld."

Mrs. Vernon Mitchell, mother of the actress, and herself a former member of the "Follies," gave the above statement to reporters and said that she had been warned, three weeks before the now famous revel at No. 246 Commonwealth avenue that a plot was in progress which would result in the discharge of her daughter.

"Sick in bed at a New York home, I was unable to investigate the reports. I knew nothing of the scandal until Geneva, who had taken the first train to my bedside, told me of the affair," continued Mrs. Mitchell.

"No, Geneva doesn't care to go back to the "Sally" company. Mr. Ziegfeld investigated the case and offered her the old position, but she refused.

"The entire party was part of the plot against my daughter. I have never left her alone before and I'm going back to New York tonight to be with her. There was no trouble at the party.

"One of the girls did become hysterical but she was quieted, and as she left, apologized to Geneva for her conduct. The girl was not in my daughter's party. She was with a Mr. Lipton, who, I was given to understand, is a relative of Mr. Kabatznick. The latter denies this, however.

"My attorneys in New York have promised to get to the bottom of the whole affair and court action will undoubtedly be taken against those who plotted against Geneva. It was a terrible thing to do. Imagine a girl, just starting out, being forced to fight against this terrible scandal for the rest of her life."

RHODODENDRONS IN BLOOM AT ARBORETUM

Great numbers of people are expected at the Arnold Arboretum Saturday and Sunday, as Professor C. S. Sargent, the director, has announced that the rhododendrons will then be at their best. It is seldom that these plants have bloomed more freely, and almost every species and variety which will grow in New England is to be found in the collection.

SECOND CHILD ALSO ESCAPES DEATH

Mrs. Margaret Mills of No. 82 Fifth street, South Boston, is South Boston's luckiest mother, and her children bear charmed lives, apparently.

About a year ago one of her small daughters fell out of a third-story window without sustaining the slightest injury.

Yesterday, Ellen, her four-year old, was run over by a street car in front of her home, between B and C streets, and Mrs. Mills was the only one hurt, getting a severe fright.

Ellen jumped up as the car passed on and sprinted for home, afterward being taken, much against her will to the City Hospital. There it was found she had suffered a slight bump when she threw herself flat on the ground, between the rails.

The truck, apparently, passed an inch above her body, never touching her. When the white-faced motorman got out to look for the remains, he saw a small girl in pig tails racing madly for home.

MEXICO HEARS DIAZ PLANS NEW REVOLT

Husband of Jacqueline LeBaudy Seeks Divorce

By Universal Service.

Paris, June 2.—First blood in the fight for the $80,000,000 Lebaudy fortune was drawn here by Roger Sudreau, who entered a demand for divorce against his young bride, Jacqueline Lebaudy.

Jacqueline Lebaudy.

Following the usual custom both are summoned to appear in the reconciliation court when the usual effort will be made to reunite the couple.

Sudreau's action thus will be heard before Jacqueline's demand for annulment comes up at the end of the month. The importance of this step can be estimated from the fact that if the divorce is granted, Sudreau gets half of his wife's fortune, whereas if the marriage is annulled he will get nothing.

An imposing array of counsel is scheduled to debate the case on both sides.

Washington, June 2.—The next wage reduction order of the Railroad Labor Board at Chicago will provide for slashes in the pay of more than a million additional railroad workers, including not only the shop crafts, but all employes except those who are members of the "Big Four" transportation brotherhoods when the board handed down its first effort will be made to reunite the couple.

Sudreau's action thus will be heard before Jacqueline's demand for annulment comes up at the end of the month. JEWISH LEADERS UNITE TO PROBE HARVARD DEBARRING PLAN

THERE ARE 375 JEWS IN HARVARD COLLEGE TODAY, OUT OF A TOTAL ENROLMENT OF 2678.

How many would there be under the proposed "limitation of enrolment" scheme now being agitated? There is a suggestion that Jews have taken so many honors in proportion to their numbers that Harvard aristocracy is concerned. Among the Harvard grads of Jewish blood who have given as much honor to as they got from the Cambridge university are Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court; Judge Julian Mack; Arnold Horween, the football star; Carl Dreyfus, merchant; and David A. Ellis, lawyer.

PRICES DROP AS BIG CATCHES OF FISH ARRIVE

Nearly One-Quarter Million Pounds of Mackerel Reach the Hub Today

The price of fresh mackerel in the Boston wholesale market was slashed again today when three steamers from the Cape Shore and a netter from Cape Cod brought to the South Boston fish pier nearly a quarter of a million pounds of this popular fish.

Prices which ranged up to 25 cents a pound last week and were 12 to 13 cents yesterday dropped to 8 and 8½ cents today. Nearly 200,000 pounds of fresh mackerel arrived here by rail and steamer, in addition to the receipts direct from fishing vessels, and added their weight toward knocking the props from under the high prices which have prevailed since the season opened.

A dispatch received from Yarmouth, N. S. today stated that more than 100,000 pounds of mackerel were taken from four traps there late yesterday, and that a large number of boats had put in with average catches of 1,000 pounds each. Most of this fish will find its way to the Boston market tomorrow. The National Fish Company at Halifax forwarded 75,000 pounds of fresh mackerel to Boston last night, via Yarmouth. The steamer Prince George sails from Yarmouth for Boston tonight with as much of the big Nova Scotia shipments as she can accommodate and an extra steamer will be dispatched tomorrow with big shipments for Monday's market.

LI EXPECTED TO RESUME CHINA PRESIDENCY

By the Associated Press.

Pekin, June 2—President Hsu Shih Chang who yesterday resigned under pressure will retire to Tientsin leaving the presidential palace to his successor, who in all probability will be Li Yuan Hung, former President.

Members of the old Parliament meeting at Tientsin have requested Li Yuan Hung to resume the presidency, from which he resigned in 1917 after the militarists obtained control. Li is expected to come to Pekin immediately to take office until the full Parliament holds a regular election.

President Hsu's resignation was announced in a mandate published today. The President's action followed a demand that he vacate, voiced by members of the Republican Parliament, supported by the victorious General Wu Pei Fu.

The liberal press of China today welcomed the retirement of Hsu Shih Chang as opening a new era in the country. It was pointed out that as long as he remained in office the north and south were antagonized, but that since parliamentary government seemed restored, there was no longer reason for Sun Yat Sen to maintain a separate government at Canton.

VALENTINOS IN SILK PAJAMA HONEYMOON

Los Angeles, June 2—Silk pajamas, love outings, champagne and a worried bride all figured extensively at the opening of the trial of Rudolph Valentino noted film star, accused of bigamy in his marriage to Winifred Hudnut, daughter of the wealthy New York perfumer.

Witnesses from Palm Springs, where Mr. and Mrs. Valentino went after the wedding ceremony at Mexicali, across the border, told how fond of swimming the bride and bridegroom were. The bride wore pajamas to a nearby hotel for breakfast. That was about half past 9 in the morning.

Carroll Lynch, special deputy sheriff, testified that he had seen the famous actor and his bride about the love bungalow and of their departure, clad in silk, for the hotel.

Jean Acker, moving picture actress and former wife of the accused actor, was the first to take the stand. After finishing her testimony she shook hands with Valentino, talked to him for a few moments in a friendly fashion.

HAD "LOVE BUNGALOW."

Another witness was Ramalia Lugo, full blooded Mission Indian, a servant employed at the Palm Spring resort. She testified that the actor and his bride had lived together in the "love bungalow" and told of having seen them early in the morning still clad in pajamas.

This evidence was regarded by Deputy District Attorney James I. Costello, who is conducting the prosecution as conclusive proof that the actor and his bride lived together as man and wife "while on the honeymoon trip from Mexicali."

William Silver, a newspaper reporter, was called to the stand to tell of the civil ceremony in Mexicali. He described it as "a semi-official affair at which a good time was had by all."

SERENADED BY BAND.

The marriage he said, was performed by the Mayor of Mexicali and afterward the forty-piece municipal band was summoned and the young couple serenaded while town officials and champagne "until everyone was feeling pretty good."

Mr. Silver testified that the bride was almost the very model of modesty over the heights of the wedding until assured that it was perfectly legal and having let the officials of the city do so.

DAILY SHORT STORY

ACCORDING TO HOYLE

By Irma Flexer Drenning.

"WANTED: a young gentleman of culture and good appearance. Must be capable of travel, dancing and golf. Well versed in the art of escorting and at home at fashionable rendezvous. In other words, such a man as is capable of the advantages of modernity, but has met with financial reverses. Reference exchanged. Apply suite 7, Concord club."

An hour after reading the advertisement Parker Lowe, with a diffident air in spite of his years of adventure, hesitated before the door of suite 7, debating the advisability of bearding the lion in his den.

A moment later he was silently thanking his luminous and lucky stars, for the possessor of the low voice which had lured him on proved to be a slim, graceful young girl of indescribable and immediate charm.

"You came in response to this?" with a wave of her hand.

"Yes," he quickly ejaculated. "My name is Parker Lowe."

"I am so grateful to you. Let me explain the situation first. You must not care for it at all. You see, her eyes brought level, unflinching gaze meeting his frankly, "until a month ago I was content with a pittance and alone in the world. I was left a fortune by an uncle of whom I had never even heard. And now I need an escort—a man who knows all the ropes. I've already procured the services of a dear little old gentlewoman to act as chaperon and make a very grand scene according to Hoyle."

"You haven't met her yet. It would be a great privilege and honor to escort, guide and protect you," he said with an earnestness and sincerity that surprised even himself.

Juanita paused to let her clapping hands like a delighted child. In the same moment she affected assumed a most pleasing business like attitude and addressed him tersely. "As to terms, $150 a week all expenses such as living, traveling and incidentals such as that is that satisfactory?"

Lowe who for three weeks had been offering in vain his services for office work for $25, swallowed. "That is very much too liberal," he said honestly.

Six days later they were at Palm Beach. And then came the proverbial insect in the ointment, for a frat brother, Dunkin, the millionaire sportsman, and Patricia Dillington, an ex-actress and also an ex-wife fell upon Lowe.

Then it was that the song was stilled in the heart of Juanita, the smile of the little old lady turned to a worried frown, and, the Universe no longer glowed really for Lowe. Even a telegram that earlier would have made him hilariously happy, served in about one more idle moment to fan the general cold silence.

And then, one evening, Juanita called him and told him with a sob that all was over between them.

"I've missed it he was heard her. He's a very good boy, strong, forceful, morning words of love and confidence looking to know the reason for her despair.

TOLD HIM WITH SOB.

"I—heard last night," she sobbed, "I'm the wrong man's bride. It's a mistake. I'm poor as a pauper after all."

"Is that it?" he coaxed. "Is your trouble with jubilation and relief. "Well, thank the Lord! Now I can tell you—I'm full of rich. You see, I'm quite well off in my own right, but fortune has come to me and last night he telegraphed his agents divided my shares and promised me a bonus. It will be enough for us to start on, and more besides. What do you say, dear little Juanita?"

And with the utmost precision and care as to detail, with the most thorough enjoyment and eager appreciation he offered his seal—with his lips—according to Hoyle.

POPE INSTALLS OLD SERVANT IN HOUSEHOLD

Rome, June 2 (By the Associated Press).—Pope Pius has disregarded the conventions of centuries by installing his old servant, Signora Linda, within the precincts of his apartment, appointing her his housekeeper and wardrobe maid, says the Giornale D'Italia.

Signora Linda, who has been with the Ratti family for forty years, watched at the deathbed of the mother of Pius while he was absent in Poland, and after the death of her mistress retired to a convent in Milan.

Upon his appointment as Cardinal Archbishop, Pius quickly called her to govern his household, and after only seven months as a cardinal he was elected Pope.

Upon his elevation Signora Linda prepared to return to the convent, but instead was summoned to Rome and installed by Pius in charge of his wardrobe, to which she adds many other duties, ordering the frugal meals for the Pope and his secretaries, overlooking the details of housekeeping and insisting upon economy and order.

BOSTON JEWS AROUSED BY HARVARD'S RACE EXCLUSION PLAN

subtle drive against Jewish scholars, President Lowell, they declare, has left no intelligent man in doubt as to his animus against the Israelites, in the opinion of many.

He opposed confirmation of Louis Brandeis as justice of the United States Supreme Court, according to Rabi David H. Shohet of Roxbury.

He refused to make allowance for Jewish boys compelled to take entrance examinations on their Day of Atonement, according to a host of witnesses.

He even declined to recognize the sanctity of the Jewish New Year when it conflicted with the regular college schedule, according to Representative Coleman Silbert.

"CENTRE OF PREJUDICE."

"The Day of Atonement incident goes back to September, 1915, and from that time the Boston Jews date the anti-Semitic drive at Harvard.

Rabbi Shohet declares that under Lowell's presidency Harvard has become "the centre of passions of racial prejudice and hatred.

"President Eliot made Harvard great," continued the Roxbury clergyman. "President Lowell will make it small."

Rabbi Shohet terms Lowell an "autocrat," and says that undoubtedly undergraduates have taken a leaf from his book for their own mode of conduct.

President Lowell, true to his tradition, remains in cloistered seclusion while the storm breaks over Harvard.

Lesser officials announce that it is ridiculous to say that the limitation of enrolment plan is directed against the Jews

They say the plan on which restriction of students will be effected has not been worked out, although they do not deny there is a strong feeling in certain quarters to enforce such restriction along racial lines.

But—they don't explain the following paragraph in the statement from the college office; a statement making no other single reference to race or religion:

ONE EIGHTH ARE JEWS.

"It is natural that with a widespread discussion of this sort going on there should be talk about the proportion of Jews at the college."

Boston Jewry has been wondering at the following incidents at Harvard since 1918:

1—The number of Jews entering Harvard has been steadily increasing, and today there are about 22% Jews in the college undergraduate body, or one-eighth of the student body.

2—These students, sons of the European Ghettoes, are heirs of highly intelligent but much-persecuted forefathers, who have longed for education and longed in vain, have gone to college to study; and they have won well in college and captured many honors.

3—The "society" element at Harvard—the very element that would back a drive against immigrants' sons with its last remittance—has not taken kindly to the Jewish invasion

4—Jews have not been welcomed into the college fraternities, and have been, in a social sense, restricted to a sort of college Ghetto, so far as their foes could accomplish it.

STARTED IN 1915.

5—An anti-Jewish feeling has been apparent ever since 1918 at Harvard, according to some well-informed Jews, who date the accomplishing of the anti-Semitic spirit from September, 1915, when Jewish students, seeking to have examinations assigned for their Day of Atonement postponed found scant sympathy in President A. Lawrence Lowell.

6—Henry Ford's newspaper, "The Dearborn Independent," devoted to intellectual programs against American Jewry, has had a large street sale among Harvard underclassmen claiming kin with New England or Southern aristocracy.

President A. Lawrence Lowell made his celebrated decision refusing to grant concessions to Jewish boys whose entrance exams were slated for the Day of Atonement on the ground that in granting candidates for Harvard two examination dates the school "had done enough."

Representative Coleman Silbert of Boston was one of the Harvard graduates who took it upon himself to act. President Lowell refused to change his mind at that time.

REFUSED TO MEET JEWS.

The Harvard head refused to meet, according to the Young Men's Hebrew Associations of Boston and New England, according to Silbert.

"The Day of Atonement incident was not the only time our boys did not get the consideration we thought they were entitled to," said Silbert. "There is a rule at Harvard that students must be on hand on the first day of the day of enrollment. When that day fell on the Jewish New Year I asked President Low all to make some concessions.

"He did not grant me a personal interview, but wanted to know if the New Year was such a sacred day to Jews. In view of his innocence of knowledge on that point I again suggested an interview, where we could fairly exchange views, but I never got it."

That Lowell's newspaper has a considerable circulation among Harvard undergraduates the news agents' figures for sale of the newspaper, with little to kindle the imagination of the ordinary boy, bear out all the way.

ALIENS "GET THEIRS."

Other papers, dedicated, in ponderously solemn proclamations, to the preservation of "the 100 per cent Americanism" from contamination from the "alien mob," are equally popular.

Some of the Boston papers do not stop at attacking Jews. Roman Catholicism comes in for excoriation. "Forelgners" in general "get theirs." It

NATURE LOVES BRIGHT COLORS
We see the truth of this statement in the variegated flowers, the vivid sunsets, the birds of brilliant plumage. But we never see an exemplified more attractively than in the person of a splendidly healthy woman. Now does nature paint this health? Why, in the rosy cheeks, the transparent skin, the smooth red lips of such a woman. And she moulds it in firm flesh and rounded contours. The ailing woman is deficient in these coloring, and she does not even appear to advantage in clothes "at would set off her most attractive sister. Many women who long for glowing health will find that they, too, can have these charms if they will give a trial to that remedy which brings strength to frail women—Lydia E. Boston Jews Denounce Racial Lines at Harvard

Among prominent Boston Jews who have commented to the Boston American on the Harvard announcement, are the following:

Attorney David A. Lourie, formerly of the Boston School committee.

"I sincerely hope that the reports which have appeared in the newspapers whereby the authorities of Harvard University may restrict the attendance of Jewish students specifically is not authentic. It is difficult to believe that Harvard, which has established its reputation throughout the world for a spirit of justice and fairness in welcoming men from everywhere, regardless of nationality, color or creed, provided they attained prescribed scholastic standards, would take any step now that might tend to destroy that splendid record of achievement.

UNFORTUNATE, SAYS GRAD.

Lee M. Friedman, lawyer, Harvard, '93, of No. 20 State street, Boston.

"It is most unfortunate for Harvard and a blow to democracy in education and public American life in general. I believe some solution will ultimately be worked out at Harvard that will not divide students on either racial or religious lines."

Ernest J. Goulston, advertising agent, No. 18 Tremont street:

"If the statement printed by the Boston American is in reality an official declaration from the governing powers of Harvard, a serious blow at the American Constitution itself has been struck

SHOULD BE RESENTED.

"It is, indeed, a pronounced retrogression of liberal thought and should be resented in a dignified way, not alone by men of the Jewish faith, but by all who believe in the freedom of religious thought and educational qualities for the American youth

"It is remarkable, indeed, that this policy directors of Harvard have been considered America's leading fountain of education cannot grasp the idea that the great American melting pot stands not for race or creed, but should be the foremost influence in turning out REAL AMERICAN CITIZENS, that their first and foremost thought be love of America and the ideals she stands for.

"I sincerely trust that a statement will be forthcoming correcting, after all an erroneous impression, of a semi-official statement."

JUDGE GOFF POINTS WAY TO CHECK CRIME WAVE

New York June 2.—The present crime wave that is enveloping the country is in reality an actual war against society according to a statement by former Supreme Court Justice J. W Goff who decried the fact that criminals are not brought to trial quickly enough.

The Justice appeared before the committee on law enforcement of the American Bar Association, which is holding a crime symposium in various cities. He declared that bail is too easily obtained by criminals and also declared that sentence should be imposed more promptly than is the general rule. He said that holding off on imposing sentence gave well-meaning persons too much opportunity to annoy judges with pleas for the convicted persons.

N. E. COLLEGES TO TAKE NO RACE ACTION

Statements by heads of colleges all over New England indicates a different sentiment than that hinted by Howard

Simmons reported many of its departments overcrowded at present and more applications than can be enrolled Priority of application holds at this institution and "Sim" mons will never consider limitation from a racial point of view," accord ing to its dean.

B. U. DRAWS NO LINE.

At Boston University Dr. Lemuel H. Murlin, president, says: "Enrollment is based on scholarship and no other lines are drawn. The problems of individual colleges are distinct and separate. There is no plan at Boston University to change the present order of things.

"It would be unfortunate, however, for any educational institution to have a preponderance of students from any one nationality other than that of native born Americans. The reasons for this position are so obvious that they need no explanation."

BATES CROWDED.

Clifton D. Gray, president of Bates College, said: "Bates College is getting to be crowded, but no discrimination on grounds of race, religion or color has ever been made or ever will be. Clean character, scholarship and future promise are the only essential qualifications for entrance."

Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, stated: "The Massachusetts Agricultural College does not intend to limit numbers in its freshman class. We believe a State educational institution has no right to restrict attendance except by maintaining scholarship standard or unless facilities provided by the State are so seriously inadequate that students applying could not possibly receive satisfactory instruction. The college endeavors to maintain high scholastic standards and at present has reasonably good facilities for all who are apparently likely to apply for admission."

At Yale University it was stated that there is no present intention to limit classes.

President B. B. Ogilby of Trinity College would make no statement. At Middlebury, Vt., President Paul D. Moody declared freshmen will be limited to 100 men and sixty women owing to a lack of dormitory and class room accommodations.

At Tufts College it was stated emphatically that the selection of new students is based only upon scholarship. "We have no other consideration here," it was stated.

City's Higher Schools Proud of Jewish Pupils

The discussion of the number of Jews among the students at Harvard calls attention to the fact that in two famous Boston institutions, the Boston Latin School and the English High School, a very large percentage of the pupils are Jews.

The Latin School was founded in Boston in the 17th century. Each year in the last score of years has seen an increase in the number of Jewish pupils, until now a large part of the honors for athletics, military drill and scholarship are captured by Jews.

In English High School an even larger percentage of the pupils are Jewish and the majority of the honors are taken by students whose parents were immigrants or the children of immigrants.

Charles Le Bon, a well known instructor of French at English High School, who was held in high esteem by every boy who ever attended his classes and who is now retiring, once laughingly made the remark:

"There was a time when almost every boy in the room stood up when I called for 'Murphy.' Times have changed. Now they all stand up when I call upon 'Cohen'."

Both the English High School and the Latin School are preparatory schools for boys and are public institutions. The masters are proud of the success of the students whose parents came to America from the Ghettos of Europe.

STATE WAR ON HIGH RENTS OPENED

A canvass of the big cities of the State to ascertain why high rents are still going higher was begun today by the Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

Rent complaints continue to pour into the offices of the Commission. At the same time evidence has been obtained that a large volume of new construction is in progress

The commission wants to know why the landlords have failed to drop their rents while the building campaign is making more dwellings available.

The commission today sent inquiries to the Mayors of the cities and to the members of the Massachusetts and Boston Real Estate Exchanges. The first question is "What is the reason for the continuance of high rents?" The other asks for a summary of the volume of new building in each city.

YALE'S CREW CAPTAIN MAY ROW IN A RACE

New Haven, June 2.—Whether Captain Langhorn Gibson of the Yale crew will handle an oar in the approaching annual Harvard-Yale regatta on the Thames, is a topic of considerable interest on the Yale campus.

Gibson, according to the Yale navy announcement strained his back early in the season, and has yet to appear on the varsity shell. But the recent swapping of coaches has been followed by a change in the style of stroke employed, and it is possible the Eli leader, who is the son of Charles Dana Gibson, the artist, and is nephew of Lady Astor of the British Parliament, may row in the Thames race

LADIES' SOCCER TEAMS PLAY TOMORROW

By ART CURLY

Hey, you soccer fans. Perk up and take notice. We have a ladies' soccer team in our midst, a real honest goodness feminine eleven with regulation uniforms and everything.

They are calling themselves the Ladies' Strandway Soccer Club, and will play their first game tomorrow afternoon at the South Boston Strandway Park against the South Boston Rangers. They have been practicing diligently for the past three weeks on the South Boston playground and feel confident that they can hold their own against the District League outfit.

Since women's soccer elevens become so popular in England, several teams have been organized in this country, but this is the first one to spring up in this vicinity and if they can exhibit anywhere near the class their sisters in England on the will be assured of a great following.

The ladies practice every Monday and Thursday evening at 7 p. m. and would gladly welcome any other young ladies interested in the game. They are also willing to meet any other ladies' soccer team in New England.

Everybody out, now, tomorrow and give this new aggregation a real sendoff.

The only other game scheduled for the week-end will be staged at Sullivan square, between Gray & Davis and St. George's. This is one of the last of the Boston and District League contests and a close game is expected.

MULLIGAN PRESIDENT OF BOSTON COLLEGE A. A.

Edward F. Mulligan, editor-in-chief of the Heights, Boston College weekly and prominently identified with all student activities for the last three years, was elected president of the Boston College Athletic Association for the ensuing year. Mulligan is a junior, and his choice was a popular one, not another candidate staying in the race against him. Several other students had entered the race, but withdrew on learning of Mulligan's candidacy.

T. Edmund Garrity, captain-elect of the hockey team, won a close contest over Charles F. Englewald for the vice-presidency.

MIDDLESEX CREWS AND NINE TO CLOSE SEASON

I., and the first and second four-oared crews will race the Pomfret (Conn.) School fours, over the one-half mile course on Bateman's Pond, in North Concord.

RENSSELAER TENNIS TEAM MEETS VERMONT

SCHOOL TRACK STARS HAVE BIG MEETS

By FRED C. LANE

The three big classics of the schoolboy outdoor track season are jammed into today and tomorrow. Close to a thousand schoolboy runners are listed to take part in the fourteenth Regimental games at Tech Field today, and the Massachusetts outdoor State meet and the Exeter-Andover dual meet, both of which take place in the Stadium tomorrow.

A little sunshine with not too much wind is all that is necessary to make the closing events of the track season successes. The lads who take part in these three meets are keyed to the minute for their best performances. There are a number of long standing records that are smarting certain individuals who will make their best attempts to bring fame and points to their schools.

The one big affair that each Boston high school student looks forward to each year, the outdoor Regimentals, takes place at Tech Field this afternoon. Six hundred and seventeen track stars from the day high and Latin schools will show their wares.

Eddie Carey

English High School leads the field with 1¾ points over East Boston High, the nearest rival as a result of the field events that took place last Friday.

East Boston Will Make Strong Bid to Win

East Boston will make a strong bid to win this annual happening but there is doubt that the athletes can withstand the driving, finish that the Blue and Blue team will engineer.

Brighton High has scored 21 points in the field events, Commerce 17½, Trade 9, West Roxbury 7½, Charlestown 6¼, Dorchester 6, Latin 5, Hyde Park 4, South Boston and Mechanics 3 each.

The feature event of the afternoon, the 880 yard run, will bring together such stars as Paul Hanley and Bill Nolan of Connerce, Eddie Carey, East Boston; Red Haggerty of Latin, Manion of English and Bill Henry of Latin. It will be the best race of the season for all have proved in recent meets that they are in fine fettle for this hard grind.

The performance of Byron McDermott of West Roxbury in winning the 880 in the District meet, falling by one second to equal the record, makes him the favorite for the half mile. A strong wind blew in his face throughout the distance preventing him from smashing the record of 2 minutes 3 seconds.

Annual Outdoor State Meet Comes Saturday

Seventy-one new faces, making a total of 295 athletes compared with 216 last year will make their appearance in the annual outdoor State meet at the Stadium on Saturday. Twenty-five schools of Massachusetts will contribute this number of athletes for this annual meet.

Newton, Marlboro, Medford, Winthrop, Brockton, Rindge, Somerville, Fairhaven, Quincy, Melrose, Salem, Cambridge Latin, Attleboro, Woburn, New Bedford, Sharon, Lawrence, Malden, Lowell, Gloucester, Beverly, Lynn Classical, Lynn English, Framingham and Haverhill are the schools that will compete.

The affair which is being run under the supervision of the Harvard Athletic Association, bids fair to be the biggest of its kind. A luncheon for competitors, coaches, managers and principals will be served at noon and the events start at 2 p. m., giving ample time in which to run off the Exeter-Andover meet which follows shortly after.

RINDGE HAS EASY TIME DEFEATING CAMBRIDGE

Rindge Tech had an easy time defeating Cambridge Latin in a track meet at Russell Field, North Cambridge, yesterday.

Cambridge Latin secured but one first place and that was when Murphy captured the mile run. In the 880-yard run and the shotput, Rindge grabbed off all three places.

Boley of Rindge got first place in the 100 and the 220, and Coulter of Rindge did the same in the 440 and the 880.

Hub twilight fans will have their first chance to look at the strong Reading Town team tonight if they journey to Ronan Park, Dorchester. Reading will pay a visit to the Dorchester Baseball Club in a Boston Twilight League game.

The other attraction this evening will be at Rindge Field, North Cambridge. The South Boston All Stars will be the visiting nine and they will have to contend with the North Cambridge Knights of Columbus.

All in all, there is no choice as to the better baseball tussle, as each game is sure to be full of action and spectacular playing

Dorchester will go on the field with a possible shift in their lineup, as Claude Davidson received injuries in a recent game when he was spiked by a runner sliding into third base. If the sterling infielder should not be able to play, Twitchell will go to second, Hunnifield short, stop and Conley will take care of the hot corner.

Chippie Gaw is most likely to go to the hill for the Dorchester outfit, and Foley will do the catching for the Redline, a young chap by the name of Runge will toss from the firing line and Bennett will catch.

In Cambridge one may look for a pitchers' battle, when either Dignan or Jimmie Fitzgerald will go on the mound for the University City nine and the Peninsula management will use Art King or Eddie Gill, the former Holy Cross twirler, while big Joe Murphy will catch.

TOOTELL LOOKS REAL GOODS

Johnny Magee, coach of the Bowdoin College track team, believes he has in the making the next intercollegiate hammer throw champion and record holder.

The young man Johnny is counting on to succeed in these two respects is "Toots" Tootell, captain-elect of the Bowdoin track team and a star lineman on the Bowdoin gridiron eleven.

"Toots" finished fourth in the hammer throw at the Stadium meet. Two of his rivals in the event—Jack Merchant and Flake Brown, will graduate from college this month, and the 1923 hammer throw title will be fought out between "Toots" and "Pink" Baker of Princeton.

PESAK BOWS TO BOSTON MAT FANS

John Pesak will make his bow to Boston fans on Wednesday when he tackles Dick Daviscourt in the semi-final to the championship battle in which Strangler Ed Lewis will defend his world's title against Earl Caddock.

Pesak, weighing only 196 pounds, is one of the strongest men on the mat, with "cordy" fibred muscles laid over a rangy frame a combination that makes for great power, endurance and great activity.

His style is even more acrobatic than that shown by George Lurich when the great Russian wrestler first came to this country.

Daviscourt is the type of wrestler to give the Nebraskan the proper kind of battle and every study of the styles of the two men point to the belief that this event will furnish the fans with plenty of thrills while it lasts and regardless of which wins

MITCHMEN GET AWAY ON RIGHT FOOT ON RETURN HOME

BRAVES GO AFTER THE GIANTS AGAIN

By NICK FLATLEY

Good times are ahead for the Braves if they but stick to the system they used to celebrate their return to the native heath. Boston has been silently beseeching the gods of the pastime for some real diamond stuff, and that opening number was the correct answer to the prayer.

Manager Mitchell thinxs his Braves are ready to go; his Braves have the same idea, and McGraw and the Giants collected it yesterday. Which is rather a hopeful combination for the next month, which will find the Grand Guards drilling daily at the Tepee.

Frederick, the manager, intends to pitch Bulled Frank Miller this P. M. He will be a stranger to the local fans, who haven't had a peek at him in a Brave uniform at all, and hardly remember him as a Pirate four or five years back.

Veteran Had to Go Home Because of Sickness

The veteran left the club in the Spring, and had to go home because of sickness in the family. He rejoined a couple of weeks ago, and worked himself into shape finishing up games. He started one in Brooklyn and was breezing along to a shutout, when he was cracked on the wrist in the sixth chapter.

That injury has been erased and the chunky old-timer is ready to show Braves Field fans some real fast pitching. He has as much "smoke" as anybody in the game, and has a lot to go with it. According to the boss, Frank will figure very prominently in the drive for glory that is scheduled to fill a large chunk of the immediate future.

Jess Barnes, who has uncorked a no-hit game since showing in this section, is in line for the Giants, who have been shooting in their hurlers in regular order.

Powell and Southworth Out for a Week Yet

Powell and Southworth, the Braves cripples, [illegible] be out of the game for a week [illegible] no yet. Captain Bill dislocated something in his leg over at the Polo Grounds, and, though he can step around again, no chances will be taken with him until everything is knitted together properly.

The fleet centre fielder, one of the club's .300 hitters, twisted his knee badly in Brooklyn Wednesday, and he'll have to watch things from the sidelines for a while also. He had something to look at yesterday while Al Dixon was showing just how to play centre field. The little Texan is one of the best of all the ball hawks, and a stretch of regular playing will give him a chance to show the fans something.

Christenbury Due to Hit, as He's a Swatter

Christenbury, who is subbing out in left, hasn't started to hit yet, but he's due, being a natural swatter. His fly-chasing has improved, and early work is likely to make him a candidate for a regular job.

Larry Kopf has recovered from his Charley Horse, but the Ford-Barbare combination has been so snappy around second that the ex-Red must remain out of it till something cracks loose.

Manager Mitchell doesn't worry much over the Western invasion. According to him, the teams in the far parts don't have up like world-beaters, and the Braves should get their real impetus while entertaining them here.

The Tribe collected the niftiest game played in these parts for quite a spell and gave the gang something to think about. The boys in the stands were groggy from gazing at two-hour pastimes and dreadful double-headers. But they forgot all their troubles, once the National League circus took the stage.

Dana Fillingim blanked the McGraws, 2 to 0, and chucked wonderful ball throughout the entire five chapters. He was in danger only once, in the ninth, an entirely new experience for Brave pitchers this hectic season.

Never Would Have Worried

Dana never would have been even worried, had not Ford stopped out of position in that ultimate round. That being the case, he steamed up a bit and brought the tussle to a conclusion in a few odd minutes more than an hour and a half.

Just that little thing, the snappy manner of running off games, will assure the Wigwamers support, if they keep it up. With a whole month at home and a bunch of pitchers showing real stuff, there's no reason why they shouldn't forget the past and hurdle up into the regular struggle.

Mister Filly had a spitball that was harder to find than the over-time nickel in a pay station. The Giants, who all hit away over .300, dislocated their respective backs trying to whack the apple and all they got was the merry laugh. Thirteen of them died by the air route, three of them fanned and only five of them hit safely.

To put it briefly, the Braves looked like a grand ball club and had the title owners blocked at all the corners. Al Nixon ranged about the garden like old Kid Mercury, and corralled seven flies in thrilling fashion. He made himself a hero in the course of one afternoon and had a real time doing it, as he didn't enjoy his last experience at all, when the Giants were here before and the gales were blowing.

The whole team played smoothly and never showed any of the flutters that have ruined many games in the past six weeks. Even with two stars like Southworth and Powell on the sidelines the Braves came closer to their true form than they have at any time this season.

Douglas Has a Lot of Stuff

They were stacked up against real pitching, Phil Douglas having a whole lot of stuff. He had one bad inning, after slow base running had ruined another, and that was sufficient for his demise. Boeckel opened the fifth with a double, took third on Holke's roller, and scored when Ford clipped a single over short.

Somerville Horace moved to third on Fillingim's thump, and reported as Groh punted Nixon's dragging bounder. And that just about summarizes the offensive side of a fine pitcher's battle.

The Giants did some screeching at Umpire Moran's decisions on balls and strikes, Davey Bancroft leading the chorus in his best Oxford manner by inquiring plaintively "Where was that one at?"

"Y" TEAM WINS ITS NINTH STRAIGHT GAME

The Boston Y. M. C. A. annexed its ninth straightster gname at Columbus Avenue Grounds last evening defeating the Boston Y. M. H. A. in a fast game. The final count was 4 to 1. Captain Wall of the "Y" featured with three hits out of three trips to the plate. An unfortunate accident marred the game, Nate Krock of the "Y" breaking his leg in the first inning sliding to second

They also have six clubs in their league, but have been playing for the past three weeks. Merchant will be remembered as the high scoring performer at the recent Stadium meet, in which he won the hammer throw, finished second in the shot put and placed in the broad jump and javelin contests.

He was a member of the American Olympic team that journeyed to Antwerp, but failed to score in Olympic competition.

HARVARD BEATS BROWN'S STAR PITCHER

Between knocking out three homers and Brown making costly errors, Harvard amassed an 11 to 4 score on Brown yesterday at Soldiers Field, thereby breaking even with the Brunonians for the defeat Harvard suffered at Providence on Tuesday.

Harvard payed serious attention to clouting and was rewarded in the third by seeing six men circle Etson, who started on the mound for Brown.

The six runs collected by the Crimson clouters came as a result of three singles a three bagger by Hallock and a home run hit by Jere Murphy, Harvard's plump catcher.

In that inning the Crimson batting order overlaped, giving Hallock and Murphy two times at bat. Barron went in the box for Etson.

Brown made a bid to come back in the fifth when Leavitt scored from second on Mitchell's single. Leavitt arrived at second as a result of a two bagger to centre field.

DECISION GOES TO LYNCH

New York, June 2.—Joe Lynch, the former bantamweight champion, was given the decision over Midget Smith in their twelve-round fight last night at Madison Square Garden.

It was a sensational final rally that won for Lynch. Up to the last round it was an even affair.

In the period fatal to Smith, Lynch gave Smith a terrific pasting and sent him reeling and bleeding to his corner. Lynch weighed 119 while Smith tipped the beam at 120 pounds.

Johnny Buff, the champion, was introduced and announcement was made that he would meet the winner.

HYDE PARK AND DEDHAM NINES PLAY ON JUNE 15

Hyde Park and Dedham High school teams will clash at Dedham June 15, Coach Leo Daley denies the statement, alleged to have been sent out from Dedham, that Hyde Park refused to play Dedham. Coach Daley is willing to arrange a second game with Dedham if the latter desires it.

FIGHT RESULTS.

At Lewiston—Kid Dube defeated Johnny Walker.

At Lowell—Johnny Attila defeated Paul Pigeon, 5 rounds; George Parker defeated Young Ketchil, Ketchell.

DORCHESTER DEFEATS J. J. CONNELLY CLUB

The Dorchester Baseball Club walloped the J. J. Connelly Club nine of Roxbury, 8 to 4, on the old Walpole street grounds in a Boston Twilight League game. Claude Davidson's outfit is now tied for third place with Malden.

The Dorchester ball players played errorless ball behind airtight pitching of Al Kroog, while Madden was knocked out of the box in the third inning

The hitting and playing of Hunnefield, Davidson, Freeman and Donovan for Dorchester was noteworthy, and Ward, McNichols and Brooks featured for Connelly Club.

PLAY DECIDING FIELD HOCKEY GAME TOMORROW

The deciding game for the championship of the Boston Field Hockey Association will be played at Wellesley College, tomorrow afternoon, between the Lexington Field Hockey Club, the title winner in Division A, and the Motley Field Hockey Club, composed mostly of Wellesley graduates, which captured the Division B title.

The contest will precede the annual tree day exercises at the college, and following the game, the players on the two clubs will be guests at the Wellesley tree festivities.

WILSON TO BE ASKED TO DEFEND TITLE IN BANGOR RING

NEW CLUB PLANS TO STAGE BIG BATTLES

By JACK CONWAY

Bangor, Maine is going to be the scene of some big league fighting this year. The Eastern Manufacturing Company has interested itself in the grand old flatic art and is planning to put on bouts that will attract the fans from all parts of New England.

Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, is among those who will be asked to journey to Bangor for a flatic engagement. They're going in for the big league stuff and as a result the shows should be well patronized

Thousands of people spend their Summer vacations at Maine resorts. They will find it easy to make trips to Bangor to take in the ring attractions

The lid will be blown off when Mickey Travers, considered by many experts as the New England featherweight champion, collides with Red Chapman of Dorchester in a twelve-round bout next Monday night. These boys have already engaged in several rollicking frolics and should furnish the fans with all kinds of thrills when they start tossing punches at each other at Bangor.

Small Clubs Close Up for the Summer Months

Most of the small clubs around the New England circuit are unable to compete with the family flivver and the old swimming pool. As a result many of them have clamped on the lid for the summer months. Jack Murphy says the "nothing doing" sign will hang on the door of the Casino A. C. of Lynn until sweet September. Brockton will also be without boxing, while Worcester and most of the other boxing spots will be lacking in big attractions.

The Naumkeag A. A. of Salem will take another flier on June 16, when Pat McCarthy will battle George Robinson. This match was carded for last week, but was postponed when McCarthy became ill.

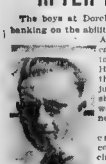
Nobody Is Enthusiastic About Outdoor Boxing

Nobody has got hoarse cheering about outdoor boxing. The small parks have been passed up altogether. The boxers, managers, tax collectors and landlords were the only ones to profit at the shows staged at Revere Field last year.

There has been some talk about shows at the Revere Bike Track. The Lnity Club appears to hold the pole at Revere. It must be "in" for five per cent, before anybody can conduct a show. As Nat Butler still thinks his track is worth 15 per cent. of the gross receipts, it would appear as though a promoter would be unwise to try to attempt anything at Revere.

McANDREWS IS AFTER TITLE

The boys at Dorchester High are banking on the ability of "Jock" McAndrews, former middle champion, to defeat Clark Hodder when they meet for the junior championship at the Commonwealth Club next month.



"Jock" McAndrews.

"Jock" was captain and coach of the Dorchester High golf team this year, which annexed the City title and went undefeated in all matches played. McAndrews is among the first five prominent players at the Wollaston Golf Club.

RUBBER CANNON BALL HITS MAN IN EYE

New York, June 2.—Thomas Curry, sixty-six, may lose the sight of his left eye as the result of being hit by a rubber ball fired from a cannon in a parade in Hoboken. A float contained an imitation naval rifle, from which the balls were fired.

CAMBRIDGE B. B. CLUB WANTS GAMES

The Cambridge Baseball Club is anxious to arrange games with any of the fast amateur teams in the State Manager John J. Fahey, No. 156 Third street, East Cambridge, telephone University 3042 W.

GEORGE TOWN MAKES IT 21 STRAIGHT

Georgetown defeated Boston College yesterday afternoon at Alumni Field, and also gave the Eagle its first coat of whitewash this season, with a 4 to 0 count. The game was the most interesting seen at the Heights so far and provided the four thousand spectators a good two hours of excitement.

Sam Hyman, the big Georgetown southpaw, had the better of a pitching duel with Vargus, fanning ten of the Boston College batters and holding them to four scattered hits. Until the seventh frame, Vargus pitched fine ball and held his own, but in the "lucky" frame two singles, followed by Sheedy's four-base clout, sent the plucky Eagle youngster from the box. Mullowney was sent in to finish the game.

Hyman proved himself master of the Boston College batters on two special occasions. With two out in the second and the bases choked, he fanned Palmer. In the sixth B. C. had two men on with two down and Darling batting. Again Hyman hypnotized the ball and dashed B.C.'s hopes.

Faultless fielding by the Blue and Gray, combined with ability to hit in the punch, proved too much for the Eagles, who made several costly errors. At that, the best play of the game was pulled off by the locals, when Liston's heady work saved them from a worse defeat than they suffered.

It was in the second after Florence forced out Murphy, who had been passed Malley made first on Palmer's error, and Florence went to third on the next ball. Liston could have nailed Florence by 20 feet, and the crowd was about ready to bawl Liston for the apparent bone. Liston held the ball for a moment and then shot the pill to Halligan, who nipped Malley off the bag. Florence started full speed ahead for the plate but Halligan pegged the ball back to Liston in time to nip him.

MOLLA PRAISES HER OPPONENT

Mrs. Mallory, out of practice had had not yet found my land legs. I hope to turn the tables in our next encounter

London, June 2.—In an interview today, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, women's tennis champion of America, had the following to say regarding her defeat by Mrs. Beamish, an English player, several days ago:

"Mrs. Beamish defeated me fairly and squarely in the Middlesex championship, but I was completely out of practice

"The women's championship at Wimbledon this year will be extraordinarily interesting," she continued. "I am hoping to meet Mlle. Lenglen again, because I believe I am able to beat her any time, but apart from this, Miss Ryan of California looks to me to have a wonderful chance for the world's championship, while England possesses a number of most promising women players who might create a surprise."

Big Frank Snyder Has Very Busy Time Ahead

Big Frank Snyder, slugging Giant catcher, has a very busy time ahead of him. He has been alternating back of the plate with Rosario Earl Smith, but the latter youth has been indefinitely suspended by Manager McGraw and sent away from the ball club. So Frank will do all the catching, as the New York leader will hardly take a chance with Gaston, his third stringer, except to finish games.

Smith, a good backstop and a great hitter, refused to observe training rules, and was banished in a fashion that leads New York experts to believe that McGraw will trade him rather than bring him back. He is the bird who was chased out of two world series games last Fall, and then fined by Commissioner Landis for bowling at the umpires.

THORPE LET OUT BY PORTLAND

Jim Thorpe, Carlisle brave and former National League ball player, has been given the gate by the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League. It came down to a question of Thorpe or a promising youngster in order to keep within the twenty players rule. And Indian Jim went.

JIM THORPE.

Incidentally Thorpe cost the Portland club $5,000 when he was purchased from Toledo. He also pulled down $1,000 a month which maybe was another reason he was let go.

Thorpe was Carlisle's most brilliant all-round athlete. He joined the Giants after he was declared a professional

VADALFI BEATS LE BLANC IN TWO FALLS

Oreski Vadalfi, Italian heavyweight, had little trouble in gaining two falls over Georges LeBlanc, French Canadian champion, last night at the Opera House. The well proportioned son of Italy footed around with the Canadian for ten minutes and then got down to real business. Securing a half nelson on the inside crotch, he had his opponent on the mat in 12 minutes and 30 seconds.

After the customary intermission, the huge grapplers started mauling again. It seemed that they had hardly started to perspire when Vadalfi got hold of his beefy opponent and tossed him over his shoulder for the second and final toss. It took exactly five minutes to gain the award.

LeBlanc appeared to be greatly overweight and out of condition.

Fred Lurich, the Cambridge blonde, took it upon himself to pin Joe Perrelli of Manchester, twice within half an hour. Fred didn't come anywhere near accomplishing his purpose and the aggressive Perrelli was awarded the decision.

In the opening match, Jim Procus, Lowell, and Fred Moran, Newport, R. I., rolled around the mat to a draw. The boys wrestled a thirty-minute time limit match, and neither was able to score a fall.

Matchmaker Bowser announced that George Calza, Italian heavyweight sensation, had recovered from his sickness and would meet Hal Christenson, Danish heavyweight, at the Grand Opera House next week.

GOLF

By F. G. THAYER.

The Women's Golf Association of Boston wound up its Spring program with a medal play tournament at the beautiful Braeburn Country Club.

The tie in the team championship between the North Shore and South Shore ladies resulted in a victory for the former by the close margin of one match, 4 to 3.

The winning team will be the possessors for one year of the Vice-President's Cup and each member of the team will be presented with an engraved bronze medal emplematic of the fine work for the season.

The best individual scoring of the day was performed by Mrs. L. G. White of the South Shore team who led the field of forty-five of the best New England women golfers with a fine round of 90 strokes, 47 out and 43 back, many of the back tees being used.

The victory of Mrs. White was as good as her performance Monday at the Country Club when she negotiated the difficult Clyde Park links in 82 strokes.

Mrs. White also disposed of Miss Margaret Curtis in her team match without any difficulty, the last named finding a good deal of trouble about the course which could not be productive of a win against the steady down-the-middle golf which Mrs. White was showing

The first net prize was won by Mrs. R. F. Kimball with a 94-88, and the second net resulted in a tie between Mrs. Percy Arnold and Mrs. G. W. Roope at 91.

The cards follow:

	Gross	Hcp.	Net
Mrs. L. G. White	90	8	82
Mrs. R. F. Kimball	94	3	91

Those who are to play in the State Amateur championship must have their entries in the secretary's hands by June 15. It would be a wise move for those who are to play at Kernwood in that event to familiarize themselves with the distances and direction of play.

ARMORY WILL STAGE AN ALL-STAR SHOW TUESDAY

Matchmaker MacLean of the Armory A. A. has arranged a cracker-jack all star card for it's next show on June 6, consisting of four ten rounders. Four champions will top the bill. Johnny Clinton, lightweight champion of New England, Tommy Noble, featherweight champion of England, Pete Hobin, welterweight champion of Europe and Abe Friedman the New England bantamweight champion.

Hobin will box Bill Carney, Noble will swap punches with Mickey Travers, Hartley will try to win over Clinton and in the windup Irish Johnny Curtain who knocked out Bobby Dyson twice will hook up with Friedman.

HOOVER AND BELYEA WILL RACE FOR THE BRITISH TITLE

STAR SCULLERS WILL ROW IN ENGLAND

New York, June 2.—Interest in the gold challenge cup single sculls race at Philadelphia tomorrow is intensified by the fact that two of the participants, whether they win or lose, will sail next week for England to participate in the Royal Henley regatta, the "world series" of British aquatics, to be rowed on the Thames July 5.

Walter Hoover, American National singles sculling champion, of Duluth, and Hilton Belyea, Canadian champion, are the two entrants in the historic diamond challenge sculls who will compete tomorrow on the Schuylkill river and then head abroad for Henley.

The American will sail on the Mauretania June 6 to have ample time to acclimate himself and become accustomed to the Thames course in an attempt to do what only one other American has done in the seventy-eight years of this classic's tradition, though half a dozen have tried. Belyea will pull oars in the wake of a score of previous compatriots who have participated in the annual diamond sculls struggle, only one of whom has reached the finish line first.

In addition to the marvellous oarsmen of the British Isles and Belyea, who is from St. John, New Brunswick, Hoover will be competing against Arthur Baynes, holder of the amateur sculling championship of Queensland, Australia, who has been in England nearly a month already, priming himself with the aid of expert coaches and trainers for the diamond sculls.

Although authentic records of the diamond sculls, first boated in 1844, were not available until 1872, it is believed that the latter cover all of American competition that has been entered, at the very least so far as an American winner is concerned. E. H. Ten Eyck of Worcester, Mass., one of a family noted for its aquatic performances, is the lone American whose name is perpetually linked with this event.

Ten Eyck, son of Jim Ten Eyck, Sr., now coach at Syracuse University, covered the 1 mile 550 yards in eight minutes and thirty-five seconds in 1897, establishing a record which stood until 1904, but which has been beaten by almost every winner since then. The record is now eight minutes and ten seconds, made by E. S. Kelly of the Leander Club in 1905. During the war years, 1916 to 1919, the race was not rowed.

TENDLER-BARRETT IN OPEN AIR BOUT

Philadelphia, June 2.—Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight, who has been matched to meet Benny Leonard, the world's champion, in a twelve-round bout at Jersey City, and Bobby Barrett the hard hitting Hilton Heights, Pa., boxer, will meet at the National League Park tonight in an eight-round bout.

ROXBURY ROVERS

Owing to a cancellation, the Roxbury Rovers are without a game for Sunday, and would like to hear from some fast 16-17 year old team offering a reasonable guarantee.

WILL HOLD FIGHT IN BRONX

By ED CURLEY.

New York, June 2.—When Benny Leonard and Jack Britton signed up a few days ago to battle, it was originally planned to hold the fray at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City.

When it was discovered that no pent-up enthusiasm exploded over the staging of the event, matters took a change, and in all probability the match will be held at the new Velodrome, in the Bronx, on the original date, June 23.

This will be definitely settled today, when the managers confer with Matchmaker Flournoy. From what can be learned, there will hardly be any hitch over the change of site.

Leonard is willing to fight Britton in any arena that will hold the crowd and there is little doubt that the welterweight champion will offer any objection to the change of locality.

The fans, who pay the freight, are now insistent upon decisions and for this main reason the change will be made.

With regard to the contemplated scrap between Leonard and Tendler, no move will be made until the Quaker City star finishes his engagement with Bobby Barrett this evening in Philadelphia.

Everybody about town expects Low to beat the "Knock 'em dead" redhead, but just the same they have a slight fear that Bobby might sneak one over.

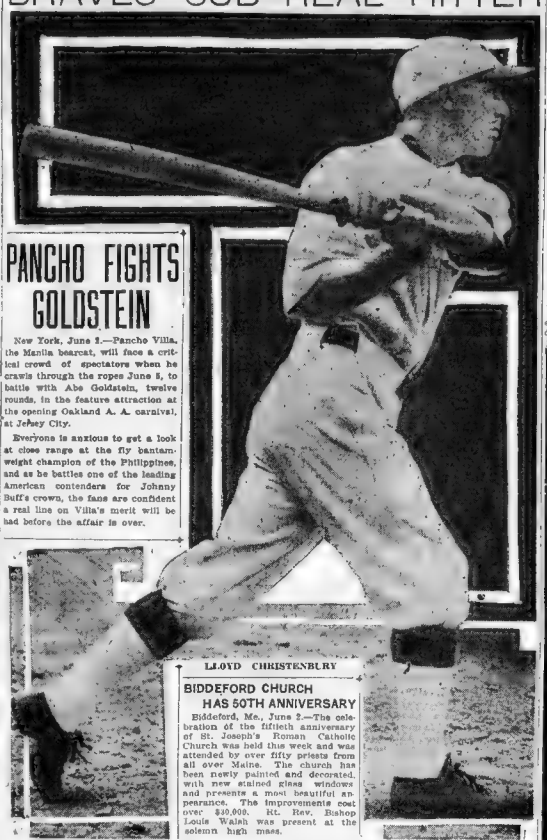
If he does then there will be little chatter of the champion fighting Tendler. Until the fight becomes history the best advertised match in the country is simmering.

JAMAICA KNIGHTS OPEN SEASON TOMORROW

The home season of Jamaica Plain Council will be opened tomorrow with a game against the strong Melrose knights, and a good game is expected.

Manager Lyons, of the visitors, will present Chelsemog, lb, Busby or L. Murray, p., Hennessey, c., M. Murray or Garcan, c., Donahue, 2b., Cronin or Denly, ss., Grant, 3b., Sullivan, lf., and McMurray, rf. The home team lineup has not been determined upon, as the team has had but one practice session. Among the veterans to appear, however, will be Danny Coughlin, the Ahearn brothers, Joe Bragger, Tommy Burns, Johnny Gill, Joe Goss, Joe Miley and Jim Barrows.

BRAVES' SUB REAL HITTER



PANCHO FIGHTS GOLDSTEIN

New York, June 2.—Pancho Villa, the Manila bearcat, will face a critical crowd of spectators when he crawls through the ropes June 8, to battle with Abe Goldstein, twelve rounds, in the feature attraction at the opening Oakland A. A. carnival, at Jersey City.

BIDDEFORD CHURCH HAS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

The church has been newly painted and decorated, with new stained glass windows and presents a most beautiful appearance. The improvements cost over $30,000. Rt. Rev. Bishop Louis Walsh was present at the solemn high mass.

WILL PLAY SUNDAY BALL AT HAVERHILL

Haverhill, June 2.—Sunday baseball games will be played at St. James Park this Summer as a petition from the St. James Athletic Association, asking for the privilege of playing Sunday games during the remainder of the season, was unanimously granted by a vote of the Municipal Council.

RUTH SAYS HE NOW HAS HIS EYE ON BALL

By BABE RUTH.

Some of the critics seem to have a notion that opposing pitchers will "low-ball" me to death this season. They attribute my failure to get a better start this season to the alleged fact that the flingers of other clubs have discovered my "weakness" and have only to continue to throw me nothing but low balls and my home run career will be halted.

It's an interesting theory, in a way, but it just so happens that I am and always have been a low-ball hitter. Some of my longest home runs have been made off balls that broke below my knees, as Urban Shocker, George Dauss and others who have pitched to me when I was swinging right probably would be willing to testify.

My supposed "weakness," on low balls, preferably, they say curves over the inside corner of the plate, was "discovered" by the Giants in the Spring of 1919, when the Giants trained at Gainesville, Florida, and the Boston Red Sox, to which I was then attached, went through the preliminary workouts at Tampa.

Giants Failed to Find a Weakness

The Giants and the Red Sox played an exhibition series and in the opening game at Tampa, I hit one off a New York pitcher, I think it was Jesse Winter, for what was probably the longest home run in my life. After I made that hit the Giant pitchers tried all sorts of deliveries in an effort to find my weakness and for several days had me stopped with a low curve ball over the inside corner of the plate.

As a matter of fact I hadn't really started to hit and they'd have fooled me just as easily with almost any other ball. They stuck to the low one, however and in the World Series last Fall they came back at me with it again. Unable to get a good free swing at the ball because of a badly infected elbow they made me look almost as bad as they did that Spring down South and ever since a lot of folks have been harping on the supposed fact that I am "sucker" for a good low curve.

Such a ball will make the best of them look bad at times but when I am swinging right I have a hankering for the low ones that is pretty well known to the older pitchers in the American League. They realize that they can't pitch 'em so low that I cannot "golf" it into the air and that my exceptionally heavy bat adds distance to height.

So far this spring I have had miserable luck in trying to prove this contention but I feel that I am safe, now, in saying that it won't be very long before I am in my old stride again. I am beginning to swing where the ball is, which means that my battle for a decent position in the batting averages is half won.

Showed Batting Power Against the Senators

Though the records would seem to indicate that I was almost a total loss to the Yankees as a batsman in the recent series at Washington, it was there that I really began to get in touch with the ball. In two consecutive games against the Senators I hit only one ball past the infield and was thrown out at first on that one, yet the boys on their ball club said I "looked" better, by which they meant I had a better swing, in those two games than in any of my preceding games at the Polo Grounds.

However, that may be, I made two hits in my first game after the Washington trip and this was the first time since my suspension expired that I made more than one hit in a single game. Maybe this nightmare of mine is not past yet but somehow I felt that those two solid, rattling wallops to the outfield were the beginning of a welcome end.

LEAHY'S CASEYS WIN FROM MALDEN

North Cambridge Knights of Columbus still has the habit of winning and now holds good control of first place in the Boston Twilight League. Leahy's team had a close shave with the Malden Knights on Perryway Green winning 4 to 3, before a gathering of 4,000 twilight fans.

North Cambridge was the first to score when Geary hit the apple for two bases. Haley then scored Connie Murphy. Former Dartmouth star, let a ball get to him and the fleet footed Cleary sped home.

BACK OF FIRST BASE

Guess those three kiddies will be proud of Daddy Glynn.

How do you like John Kasper's tennis shoes?

Did you see "Rounds" Ripley in his tuxedo? Or Paul Sullivan?

George V. Brown is around again.

Jim Lyons is Roxbury's 106 per cent. baseball fan.

Tom Goodwin journeyed to Hough's Neck—we don't learn why.

One batch of sun batters we noticed in back of first base had the following members: Harry Murray, Pinkerton Service; John Keenan, "Nick" Wise and Fred Blanchard.

Wonder if Curley Donohue will be at home in the 4 Nick.

Bells and Their Tone

THE tone in many old bells can be accounted for only by their age. After a bellmaker determined that with a century of use the bell clapper and the surface of the bell fitted exactly, he cast them in a form giving considerable contact surface.

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

THE STORY SO FAR

DESTINY had dealt savagely with beautiful young Remember Steddon, daughter of a Massachusetts clergyman. She had given her love to Elwood Farnaby, with whom she sang in the choir but he was unable to marry her, being the sole support of his drunken father's large family. Dr. Bretherick discovers there is reason for a marriage, but while he is urging this on the girl Elwood is fatally injured in an automobile accident. Elwood dies and Dr. Bretherick fixes up a yarn to tell Remember's parents. She goes to California by his advice and meets prominent movie people on the train. The train is nearly wrecked by an accident to the locomotive and has to stop in the desert. There Mem gets acquainted with Tom Holby, a movie star. She is met at Tucson by Dr. Galbraith. She writes her parents that she has married "Mr. Woodville."

THE squaws went down the street in cheap fabrics, high in the neck and low in the hem. They were mainly blue-and-white Mother Hubbards aided and abetted by capes of colors that massacred one another and tortured the beholder. The hot wind flapped their clothes about them with a ruthless draftsmanship that emphasized what it concealed. There was no question as to the conformation of these squat, stodgy figures.

The red fillets about their brows would have been more effective if the faces beneath had been more attractive or the lawless hair better kempt.

Men Better Looking

Ever the young squaws had little to commend them to admiration, and the contrast between their gold-crowned teeth and their shoeless feet was not to their advantage.

The men were better looking and better carried. They were mainly tall and lithe and haughty. They had also a passion for color, for bandannas and loud shirts. They wore their hair longer than the squaws wore theirs.

Tribal custom forbade them to braid it and it fell in long strands sometimes to their waists, with no confinement except perhaps a piece of colored string.

Mem could hardly believe her eyes when a long, lean buck flew past on a bicycle, his hair streaming out like a young girl's.

She passed one boarding house to whose front yard was a signboard boasting the stormlessness of the region:

Free Board and Lodging
Every Day in the Year that does not Shine

In such a persecuting heat as this Mem thought the legend an the sign more of a threat than a promise.

When she reached the boarding house selected for her, she rejoiced at the sight of shade. But here lurked another landlady to be lied to. Mrs. Drissett greeted Mem hospitably and asked, "What name, please?"

Mem managed to check the name "Steddon" coming up her throat and changed it hastily to "Mrs. Woodville."

"Your husband ain't with you?"

"No, no. He—he's coming along later." And now her heart sank. How could she kill off Mr. Woodville here when he had not yet arrived? How was she to arrive him?

Double Room

"You'll want a double room, then," said Mrs. Drissett.

As she moved up to her allotted room the sad-eyed man she had noted on the train came up and asked for "commodations."

It was well that Mem had not put on her mourning. She would have been caught indeed. She rested in her darkened room to escape the afternoon blaze, but when she came down to supper she was placed next to a woman who frightened her worse than a tarantula, by the petrifying remark:

"Small world, ain't it, Mis Woodville? My husband's folks on his mother's side was Woodvilles. What part of the country does your husband's family hail from?"

Mem choked sincerely on a bread crumb, but prolonged the spasm while she tried to plot an answer to this perilous question. She had never expected to be cross-examined on her husband's family or habitat, and had never equipped Mem with either.

She could not endure the jail of her room, and stole out for a walk. The desert twilight was turning the tin roof of the sky into a heavenly ceiling where invisible spirits were wielding brushes of divine splendor.

The town's one ambitious building, the courthouse, broke the horizon with a cupola that was a palette of reflected pigments.

Along the River

She wandered down along the swollen Colorado, a stream of blood in the sunset. An old stern-wheeled steamer fought its way up from the California gulf noisily and ominously, like some primeval water beast returning to its lair in the Grand Canon.

The mountains in the distances were piled up in mournful dunes against a sea of gleaming light.

But she was afraid of the Indians slipping noiselessly about on innocent errands. She could not believe that they were not planning a massacre. This was the old Apache country. Yet the Indians and the Mexicans, whose children played about as naked as the other pigs, were not dangerous to her. They made little trouble over an unauthorized child or two.

She hurried back to the main street where the Indians were mere loafers and small-town sports, smoking cigarettes and ogling the giggling girls in the evening mood of other small towns.

She was faint with hunger and entered a drug store for refreshments. She bought herself a nut sundae at at Calverly. On either side of her was an Indian brave treating an Indian girl to the same pale-face medicine. The braves wore headdresses of gaudy color—almost as gaudy as the shirts on the young white beaux who were taking their sweethearts to the movies.

The sad-eyed man next to whom Remember slept in the yard of the boarding house at Yuma.

Mem followed the crowd and paid "two bits" to sit with the aristocrats, while the Greasers, the Hopis and Navajos went in at the other door for ten cents.

The Indians had learned to spoon in the dim light, and they laughed at the low comedy and sighed at the low pathos. They could read the first universal language and romance was warming their dreary lives.

At the Movies

Mem smiled to think of her father's wrath at the movies as the weapons of Satan, for she could not but realize how much safer from temptation these spectators were here watching the unfolding of almost any imaginable fictions than they would be wandering in stealthy couples along the gloomy river banks or left to the mercy of their own devices in the dark of their wretched homes.

She blushed suddenly with the thought that if she and Elwood had spent that Sunday evening in a moving picture house, instead of mooning on the home porch, she might have escaped this shameful exile.

She went back to her boarding house relieved a little with the monomania of her own problems by watching the weaving and unweaving of pictured problems.

When she reached her new home she found the yard full of beds and most of the beds occupied by a sprawling populace with hardly so much as a sheet to mask its nightwear.

She stole through the camp to her own room and found it bedless. She stood at her door bewildered.

The woman who had frightened her away from her dinner by her genealogical interest in the Woodville tribe appeared ghostlike in nightgown and a toga'd sheet and, seeing her perplexity, explained the custom of the country.

"You'll sufferceats if you try to sleep in your own room, honey. Get into your nightgown and bring your bedclo'es down with you, like I'm doin'. Your bed is in the yard next to mine. You'll sleep good and feel right refreshed in the mornin'."

There was nothing for Mem to do but follow suit. To one who had never seen a bathing beach or gone in bathing undress among a crowd, the ordeal was terrifying. She dreaded it as an early Christian martyr might have recoiled when the Romans tore off her clothes and thrust her into the arena; as those three Quaker women must have shuddered when the good Puritans of Boston stripped them to the waist, tied them to the tail of a cart, and lashed their bare backs through the snowy streets of eleven towns—for their soul's sakes; just as the good Puritans of 1920 lashed the bare reputations of the moving-picture producers for the good of the community.

Fortunately for Mem's tranquillity, her Woodvillian relative by marriage was already asleep and snore when she slipped breathlike out into the yard and, after a pause at the brink, ran to her bed and crawled under a tent of mosquito netting and nothing else.

She lay staring up at familiar stars in a most unfamiliar world, and shame and loneliness smothered her, as she smothered her sobs in her pillow lest she wake the neighbors. The hot breath from her own lungs was cooler than the night breeze, and the bed beneath her was so warm that modesty battled almost vainly with nature to keep as much as a sheet over her.

She wondered why she had come to this Gehenna where she did not purge herself of sin, but committed more and more sin. She wondered why anybody was here at all. Having learned to distrust her own wild capabilities for passionate impulse, she wondered how long she would endure the penance.

Here she lay, tossing like a frying fish in a skillet, trying to atone for a moment's rapture with a lifetime of woe, while other women had glorious times and fame and luxury; and did what they pleased, and were fawned upon by the whole world. That Miriam Tore! She got ten thousand a week in spite of the fact that people said she had had two children outside the law! Was she popular in spite of that fact? or because of it?

She fell asleep so late that she slept on far past the daybreak, and when the sun's rays finally raised her eyelids open she sat up with a start, thinking that some one had moved the house out from under and over her.

Her darting eyes met the bleary gaze of the sad-eyed man, lolling a few beds away.

He smiled and drawled, "Good mawn'n'." This was really quite too incredible. She did not answer him. but hid under the sheet until she was sure that he had scrambled out and, wrapping the drapery of his couch about him, had marched into the house.

Then she gathered up her bedclothes and ran.

She bathed standing up by a washbowl on a washstand, and the cold water was already so warm, her flesh already so tingling with the early heat, that she dreaded to get into clothes.

And, of course, she was suffering nausea every morning; her body was as sick of the complexities of life as her mind.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

Copyright, 1922 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

By ANN LISLE

"I want you to hear about—my father," I said steadily. "I think you ought to know—for both our sakes."

So I hastily sketched the career of Linky Lee from the vaguely remembered childhood days when he had deserted my little mother and me, right up to the time when Dad Lee came back into my life a repentant prodigal.

Carlotta listened gravely. At the end of my recital she asked an odd question:

A Hasty Sketch.

"Does he seem as much your father as that glorious, big Highland man you can call 'Father Andrew?'"

"I love Father Andrew," I replied, "because I can't help it. He was the only father I knew for long, happy years. He's the father of my heart. I try to love Dad Lee because I ought to."

"Do you succeed?" Carlotta persisted.

"No," I confessed shamefacedly. "And I sometimes think it's too late for him to reawaken his own love for me. He adores Dick West. He'd stand by Dick at any cost—and you've seen how that pleasant drug fiend rewards the poor old man."

"Runs off and leaves the friend who was probably hurt trying to help the West man get away," replied Carlotta thoughtfully. "And laugh if you like, but I think your poor misguided Dad Lee is rather a chivalrous person.

He has everything to gain by winning his daughter's love. He risks it all for a devotion that brings him nothing but abuse and danger."

"Carlotta, you've said it!" I replied excitedly. "I think we've the clew to the whole tangle. Perhaps Dad Lee tried to keep Dick from running away and Dick—beat him up for his pains.

"Then this Rogers man, who is evidently another of our fascinating Dick's stanch adherents, must have taken orders from Dick and worked out a scheme whereby even if Dad Lee decided to betray Dick to me I couldn't make a move to keep Dick from escaping. He's the friend who went to Canada! You heard Rogers say that Dad Lee would be sure to hear—didn't you?"

"I think you're right," said Carlotta slowly. "And I fancy that from now on your Dad Lee will be on your side. It was about the final touch when Dick deserted him."

"I wonder," I said slowly. "I wonder."

An Early Breakfast

When Carlotta and I met for an early breakfast on the morning after our strange experience in the hotel where Dad Lee lay battered and bruised, we looked at each other searchingly for a moment, and then Carlotta's eyes crinkled up and a giggle escaped her lips.

There wasn't anything particularly funny about being "shut up in a tower" like the old-time prisoners, but the constraint between our present smug and smooth safety and the imagined horrors of the night before, sent us off into peals of merriment.

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

HE had dropped his air of badinage and was once more the serious physician. She wondered after he had gone if he had suspected that Richard Hollingshead has offered to drive her back to the East Side tonight.

The visit Adelaide and Jennie Brown made that afternoon to their mother in the hospital was brief, but satisfactory.

The patient smiled happily as her daughters greeted her. She reminded them that the ordeal was over, and that now she need only wait until the doctors let her leave the hospital.

"And I have such a lovely room and such a nice nurse!" she added. "Girls—do you notice my lovely room? I do not understand about it yet. Surely some one must be paying for it."

"It is all right," Adelaide assured her. Then—in a low voice—"Dr. Carter arranged about it. It is costing us nothing, dear mother."

Mrs. Brown caught her breath in surprise. "What a dear, good old man he must be!" she explained.

Adelaide Smiled

Adelaide smiled at the word "old," but she did not explain that the specialist was young enough to be Mrs. Brown's son. Instead, she remarked that all was going well at home, and, after she and Jennie had expressed their joy at seeing the beloved patient so comfortable, they withdrew.

In the corridor Adelaide met her mother's nurse.

"My mother says you are so lovely to her," Adelaide remarked impulsively. "It means a great deal to my sister and me to know that."

The nurse smiled pleasantly. "Nobody deserves credit for being good to any one who cannot see," she replied. "It is tedious to lie with a bandage over one's eyes, but your mother is getting on finely. You must be very happy over it, for blindness is cruel."

"Indeed it is!" Adelaide rejoined. "Thank you, and—good afternoon."

She was silent as she and Jennie walked homewards. She was thinking of the nurse's words. "Nobody deserves credit for being good to any one who cannot see." Blindness is cruel."

Wants to Remember

She, Adelaide Brown, deserved no credit for doing all that was possible to mitigate the miseries of Mrs. Hollingshead's lot. Yes, blindness was cruel. Yet sometimes men, a well, strong girl, had felt sorry for herself because of the part she must play in the Hollingshead sick room. Even Dr. Carter did not seem to appreciate that she was only doing her duty—a duty for which she was well paid.

Hereafter she must remind herself of this. She would make of the service to the blind woman a kind of thank offering for her own mother's recovery.

Mrs. Hollingshead would have to know sooner or later of her daughter's death. If she lived she must be made horribly unhappy. If she died—

TAKE BACK THE HEART

Take back the heart that thou gavest,
Take back the heart that thou gavest,
What is mine anguish to thee!
Take back the freedom thou cravest,
Leaving the fetters to me.
Take back the vows thou hast spoken,
Fling them aside and be free;
Smile o'er each pitiful token,
Leaving the sorrow for me.
Drink deep of life's fond illusion,
Gaze on the storm cloud and flee
Swiftly through strife and confusion,
Leaving the burden to me.

Lost Breath, Heart Fluttered After Slightest Exertion

Weak, nervous woman obtains "New Health"

"Some months ago," writes Mrs. Lizzie Corcoran, of 414 West 45th Street, New York, "I found that after the slightest exertion I suffered from shortness of breath accompanied with a fluttering of the heart. Frequently I would get a stabbing pain in my left side. I tried various remedies but instead of improving I became worse. My appetite failed and soon even the sight of food became repulsive. I forced myself to eat because I was losing flesh, but what little food I ate turned to gas and gave me sharp pains in the chest and loins. Then my nerves became so weak that I would "jump" at any sudden sound, while my heart would flutter violently. I became thoroughly alarmed. My condition seemed indeed desperate. I almost gave up hope of ever getting well again. One day a friend called and, seeing my nervous and exhausted condition, told me that what I needed was Wincarnis. But I had already tried so many things without benefit that I hadn't much faith in her advice. Nevertheless, she persuaded me to send out for a bottle of Wincarnis and I began taking it right away. In all I have taken four bottles and I am amazed at the wonderful result. Words fail me to describe what Wincarnis has done for me. Where other remedies failed, it has succeeded far beyond my expectations. Today I am strong and well. And I owe all my renewed health to your wonderful Wincarnis."

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

"I take the responsibility on my own back to say what is a fair price and I ask every operator, individually, to adhere to those prices.

"I do not believe a man should accept public office unless he is willing to take the responsibility in an emergency."

Thus spoke Herbert Hoover to the coal operators. Haven't his words a straight-from-the-shoulder ring? He realizes, therefore, that it would be iniquitous from every point of view to allow coal producers to mark up coal prices to dizzy heights, for we would soon find prices of various classes of merchandise being raised on the excuse that excessively dear coal had increased the cost of production.

* * *

Oftener than once lately there have been revelations which suggested that employers and employes in certain industries worked in cahoots to raise both wages and prices. It is not at all certain that this game has not been worked in the past in the coal industry.

* * *

Adding a few dollars a ton to the price of coal doesn't make the available supply last one hour longer. Scarcity cannot be made good simply by boosting prices. The only persons who benefit from profiteering prices are the coal sellers, parties to the dispute responsible for the stopping of normal supplies. Doubtless there were interests in the coal industry who hailed the strike as affording them opportunity to pocket abnormal profits from the enormous surplus stocks which they had accumulated. Hoover's timely and decisive action should spike their guns.

* * *

If in the past coal prices had not been outrageously boosted when strikes occurred, if coal purchasers and sellers had strictly adhered to normal prices during periods of scarcity, there would have been no demand on the part of the public that the government step in and lay down the law to the coal people as to what they must do and what they must not do. But the public, from past experience, felt very keenly that they would be robbed if the coal people were given freedom to do what they pleased.

It costs a lot of money to place foremen, superintendents and managers over forces of workers. This heavy overhead cost, however, has been found necessary because workers, as a rule, need bossing.

In the same way the American public has found that our business men need to be carefully supervised. That is the reason why we today have such an inordinate number of courts, commissions, investigations and other regulatory bodies. This costly governmental machinery is the natural effect of causes created by the business world, or at least by the black sheep of the business world.

Let us have confidence. Hoover will protect us all from such profiteering in coal prices as we experienced during some former strikes.

Wall Street Notes

ATLAS COMPANY directors meet today to act on approval of merger with Electric Alloy Steel, approved by the latter company's directors.

AMERICAN STEEL FOUNDRIES report surplus for first quarter of $417,439 against $518,290 for the first quarter of 1921.

ATLANTA FORD plant has raised output from 75 to 150 cars a day, which is its record production.

REPUBLIC RUBBER fabric and cord tire sales are running on a 50-50 basis. General Manager Fitch looks for cord demand to outdistance that for cheaper tires.

L. L. WINKELMAN & CO. say New Haven should be bought at present prices for a much more substantial advance.

NEW YORK CENTRAL'S plan to save approximately 2 per cent. on $25,000,000 by its new bond issue should result in further advance for this stock, in prevalent opinion.

AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL'S selling above 50 was due to expectation that aid to Germany would stimulate business for concerns in which this corporation is largely interested.

MUTUAL OIL COMPANY has taken over Boston & Wyoming Oil. A merger is pending, subject to approval of stockholders.

WILLYS-OVERLAND'S advance has been due, it is believed, to understanding that the company has completed financing for the next year and a half.

APRIL EARNINGS of 56 railroads decreased $12,532,724, or 3.7 per cent., in gross but increased $14,440,355, or 60.5 per cent., in net.

PRAIRIE OIL & GAS, as of December 31, 1921, shows total assets and liabilities of $130,903,759 against $163,476,331 in previous year.

SEARS, ROEBUCK sales for April were $14,774,694, an increase of $1,238,516, or 10.29 per cent. compared with April, 1921.

STANDARD OILS IN REACTION ON CURB

New York, June 2.—There was a halt in bullish activities in the Standard Oil issues after early advances on the Curb Exchange, and dealings generally showed pronounced contraction being far smaller than had been noted lately. Standard Oil of Kentucky advanced to 106 and then yielded to 105½.

STEEL TOUCHES 103 FOR NEW 1922 HIGH

New 1922 highs were made in the afternoon by Martin Parry, American Can, American Car & Foundry, Peoria & Eastern, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Texas Gulf Sulphur and Mexican Petroleum.

In the forenoon trading new year's highs were set up by American Sugar, Punta Alegre, Austin & Nichols, Cosden, California Pete, Hydraulic Steel, Electric Storage Battery, Freeport Oil, Marland Oil, Studebaker, Pittsburgh Coal and Union Oil.

Midvale and Republic Steel, figures in the big three-cornered merger, acted at variance. Midvale was weak, off 2½ at its low of 38⅞ and off an eighth at its high of 41⅝.

CALL MONEY STIFFENS.

The renewal rate of 4 per cent. for call money was the highest since last February, and featured the continuance of the flurry which caused the rate to advance to 5½ per cent. in the previous session. June money requirements are usually heavy and funds are said to have been withdrawn from Wall street for commercial uses elsewhere.

The drop to 4½ per cent. came around noon.

Old speculative issues again appeared at the fore and demonstrated their ability to step forward under heavy turnovers.

In the tobaccos American Sumatra was off nearly 3 points. Retail Stores was back a point and a half and Tobacco Products moved within a fractional range.

National Enamelling, which quickly made a gain of around 5 points, featured the industrial list. California Petroleum was up over 8 points, leading the oil shares, close to its record for all time.

TEXAS COMPANY STRONG.

LOWELL PLANS TO BOOM BUILDING

A City Planning Board to boom building is the latest Lowell plan to combat unemployment. Mayor George H. Brown is back of it. The slogan will be "clean up, paint up and build up" and the planning board will wage an aggressive campaign to stimulate activity and create a market for labor.

Another significant item of industrial news comes from Lawrence, where citizens, annoyed by the strife between rival unions, which has hindered several sincere efforts at settlement of the textile strike, are agitating for a permanent organization to represent all the employes of the mills in case of trouble. There are now three textile unions in Lawrence.

Directors of the International Cotton Mills announce sale of the Stark Mills property at Manchester N. H., to the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. It was also stated plans are under consideration to increase the capacity of one of the southern mills of the International group to produce the leading Stark lines of goods.

1,000 BACK IN LOWELL.

Lowell, June 2. — The Hamilton Manufacturing Company has 1,000 of a possible 2,200 of its employes back at work. Union heads say these in the mill are not strikers, but new and unskilled hands. They say the strikers will hold out until the order for a 20 per cent. wage reduction is rescinded. The Bay State Cotton Corporation continues to operate with a half-strength force. Other Lowell cotton mills have not cut wages. There is much interest in Mayor Brown's plan for a City Planning Board to stimulate building.

Lawrence, June 2. —The strategy board of the United Textile Workers endorsed the plan of President McMahon of that organization for a number of meetings of all the crafts and employes of all the mills affected by the strike. Millmen have promised to meet mill committees appointed by the craft leaders.

NO EFFORT TO SETTLE.

Pawtucket, June 2.—Advice from labor headquarters is that the treasury of the United Textile Workers of America is strong enough to support its members who are on strike at the textile mills, even if the strike lasts all summer. Meanwhile there is no effort at settlement.

Fall River, June 2.—There was no June 1 wage change, as the employers and employes have not had their semi-annual wage conference.

APRIL EARNINGS OF RAILS OFF

From railroad reports so far submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission, it is apparent that net earnings for April, 1922, will be somewhat less than those for February and March.

In fact, the roads will do well if they make a net return of 4 per cent. on their valuation compared to over 5⅛ per cent. in April, 1922.

The returns from 137 carriers show a net operating income amounting to a little over $35,000,000. In order to earn 6 per cent. on the investment, the railroads would have to accumulate earnings of $76,400,000 for the month.

With preliminary reports from railroads having a mileage of 230,000 out of a total of 235,000, it is indicated that the net will be approximately $50,000,000.

The roads' current reports of car loadings from the American Railway Association are very encouraging. While there is a notable falling off in some lines, the railroad carriers appear headed for better times.

The strike menace, however, should at no time be disregarded.

New York, June 2.—Exchange on London made a new high record for over three years when demand bills sold at $4.47⅝, against Thursday's high of $4.45⅝.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

IN "THE TRAP," shown at Loew's Orpheum early this week, Lon Chaney proved definitely that it takes more than an actor to make a film. It takes a good story too. Chaney has given promise of becoming one of the screen's best "bad men"—or at least, character actors. In this picture, his first starring film, he very nearly takes back that promise. He has turned to the George Beban school of acting, showing by comparison what an uncommonly good villain he was.

In "The Trap" we have a good theme, an insincere story, and a misplaced actor. There are few who can portray hatred and lust for revenge as Chaney can, yet in this instance it doesn't ring true. He should stick to his villainies. Given the right roles and strong stories he can become one of the big figures of the American films.

"A PROPHET IS WITHOUT HONOR.

RODOLPH VALENTINO was a regular "prop" of the Universal productions for several years before he managed to corner a large share of public adulation in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "The Sheik," but he failed to win any undue recognition for his work. Some years ago I prophecied success for him after watching his work in a few short scenes of Clara Kimball Young's "Eyes of Youth."

Now that he is a Personage, Universal has decided that they knew it all along and are dusting off old films in which he appeared. They are re-releasing "The Delicious Little Devil," an old picture featuring Mae Murray, with Valentino in the lead with her.

SPEAKING OF CHANEY

THAT Lon Chaney may prove that he should have a thoroughly disreputable and unsympathetic role in order to win success, he is given the opportunity to show what he can do with the part of Fagin in the Jackie Coogan picture, "Oliver Twist." He should really make his mark here.

SHELDON FOR FILMS.

SINCE he has done so excellently in adapting the plays of others and in writing new ones himself, Edward Sheldon, product of the famous "47 Workshop," Professor Baker's class at Harvard, has decided to go in for scenario work.

He has written an original story for the screen, "On the High Seas," which Famous Players-Lasky have bought and plan to use as a co-starring vehicle for Jack Holt and Dorothy Dalton. Mitchell Lewis will be the "heavy."

HART COMING EAST.

"THE GOOD BAD MAN" is on his way to New York to complete arrangements for a screen "comeback." This, in case you don't know, is W. S. Hart, who has once more decided not to retire, thereby beating out Sarah Bernhardt on the question of farewell appearances.

BLUE FOR KENNEDY FILM.

MONTE BLUE has been chosen for the leading role with Madge Kennedy, in one of her first pictures for the Kenma Corporation. The rest of the cast for the "Dear Me" includes Vincent Coleman, Dore Davidson and Emily Fitzroy, as well as a number of the society people of Oyster Bay, who volunteered to appear as "mob" when scenes were shot there on Monday night.

It would seem that Miss Kennedy is making a special effort to surround herself with strong players. Davidson is already an important figure, owing to his work in "Humoresque" and "The Good Provider," while Emily Fitzroy sprang into the limelight for her work in Griffith's "Way Down East." Coleman appeared in the last Mae Murray picture, while Blue needs no introduction to anyone. His work speaks for itself.

RALPH GRAVES CHOSEN.

RALPH GRAVES, remembered for his playing of "Spike" McFadden in "Dream Street," has been chosen for the lead in the film version of Frank Keenan's stage success, "The Long Chance," which Universal will film this summer.

PORT RECORD FOR GRAIN EXPORT

With the sailing of the Leyland liner Winifredian with a cargo of 232,532 bushels of grain, Boston has completed its greatest grain shipping week in history.

Among the other ships departing with large consignments of grain from the West were the steamship Nitonian, with 80,000 bushels; the Sachem, with 80,000 Western Plains, the North Africine and the Mississippi. Since the agitation of Mayor Curley for grain business for the port began there have been shipped more than a million bushels.

In commenting on this increasing grain business Mayor Curley said: "The shipping of this great cargo of grain from Boston in the teeth of the 'differential' and despite the melancholy outpourings of our professional commercial pessimists is a proof of the fact that when shippers and shipmen get together in days of competition the port of Boston will get her share of international business."

Funny to Brooklyn Eagle

Not Quite So Funny to Those That Live Near the Pacific

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

"SHIPS THAT PASS IN THE NIGHTMARE"

Is the caption that the Brooklyn Eagle puts under this cartoon BUT—

This picture is supposed to be funny.

It doesn't seem so funny as you travel down Fulton street, over the East River, across Manhattan Island, over the Hudson River, and then three thousand miles farther on, across the United States to the Pacific coast.

Out there they know what they are talking about when they discuss Japan, the Japanese fleet, and the possibility of a war with Japan.

They have seen in California, and in other far western States, what the Japanese do.

They know that they are harder to get rid of once they get in than any other invader.

They know their intelligence, their cunning, their capacity as fighters and schemers.

Brooklyn is a long way from the Pacific Ocean. And certain Brooklyn minds fail to realize that the United States extends farther west than the East River.

But even the Brooklyn editor that prints this picture need not feel so very safe, and WOULD NOT feel safe as regards Japan, if he knew more about the facts.

Brooklyn is as convenient for Japanese attack as San Francisco, or nearly so.

The Panama Canal connects Brooklyn with Japan.

The Japanese have two hundred flying machines, with trained British fliers teaching the Japanese to use them.

Those machines could be brought through the Panama Canal, right close to Brooklyn, in very innocent looking Japanese freight ships.

Hydraulic elevators would bring the flying machines up through the open decks. And what they would do to Brooklyn, Brooklyn editors and newspaper offices, would surprise the publisher and the maker of this cartoon.

Cartoons like this were printed in England, and the idea that there might be war with Germany was ridiculed in very witty fashion along in 1911, '12 and '13. At that time Lord Northcliffe was telling the English that war with Germany was coming to a dead certainty.

In this country, in 1912, he told this writer and others that a war with Germany was absolutely inevitable—as it proved to be.

It is lucky for the United States that it has in the Senate, close to the President, and also to talk to him, such men as Borah and Johnson.

Mr. Daugherty After the War Thieves

He'll Get Some of Them. May He Not Miss the Biggest

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Mr. Daugherty, Attorney-General, announces that he will go after the war thieves and lead the hunt himself. More power to him.

The Daugherty investigation will answer one interesting question. "Does the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. control the Republican administration today, as it controlled the Wilson administration of yesterday? Have Morgan & Co. still power to decide what corporations shall and shall not be investigated, and made to refund?" Morgan & Co. was the Siamese link between American and English finance during the war, the people paying the bill. Has it been able to switch and make itself the connection between the Republican administration and corporations that need "benevolent protection?" That will be shown in the coming investigation, the most important ever undertaken in this country.

The New York Times says the Attorney-General will lead the prosecution of war thieves himself because important lawyers—sixty of them—refuse the job.

When Daugherty begins turning over the stones and logs under which the war patrioteers are hiding, there will be a great scurrying and the vermin exposed—if the job is well done—will include many men that pay big fees to lawyers.

Of the really "great" lawyer none would be sure that he wouldn't have to put some valuable client in jail if he undertook that investigation job. That's one reason why they refuse, and Mr. Daugherty has to do it himself. How thoroughly will he be allowed to do it?

Caesar punished his own daughter for not obeying the law, but he only punished her mildly. You can't expect the Republican party really to punish her most prosperous sons. And she will find them lined up with Democratic rascals in Siamese fashion, making it impossible to cut them apart.

However, Daugherty has promised a complete job and means to do it.

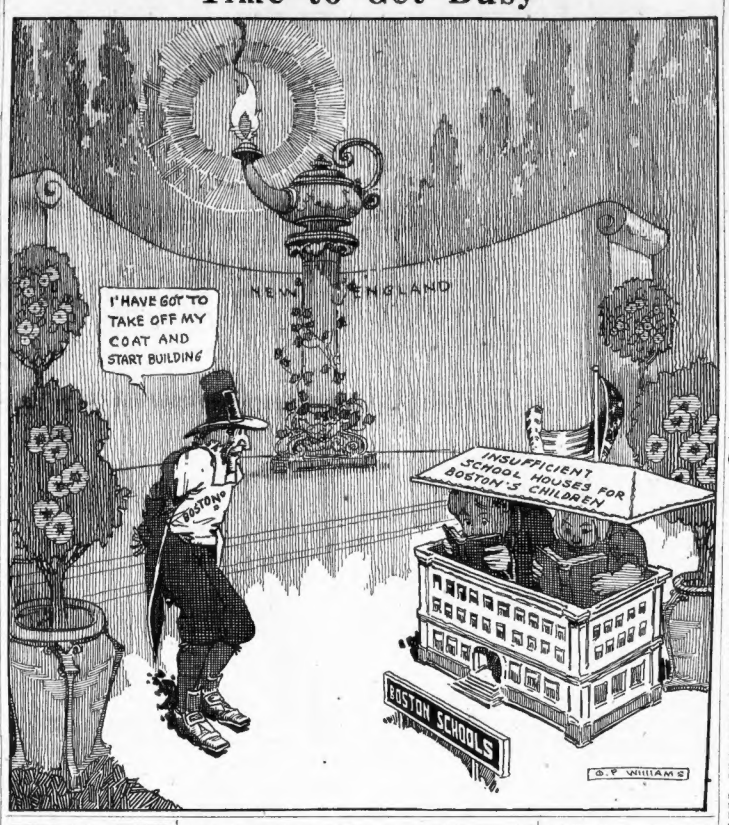
Time to Get Busy



The Voice of New England

City of Service

Editor Boston American:

My attention was called to your reproduction in an editorial in your issue of the 26th, of part of a letter I recently wrote regarding the attitude of New England buyers toward salesmen.

If we impress strangers with a feeling that we are "curiously different" from all the rest of the country, and that our distinguishing characteristic strikes them as being considerably behind the rest of the country in modern methods and "pep," then it much behooves us, if we are not to sustain this impression, to take very active and persistent measures to correct it.

Let us, one and all, with the indispensable aid of the newspapers, set out from this moment to make Boston "The City of Service."

RICHARD WESTERN.

Democracy

Editor Boston American:

I just could not keep from writing to you in regard to the Vermont Academy affair. I have married one of the best men in the world and he is a Haitian. The reason I say he is one of the best, I mean morally. I think that professor person is like most people who think because they are of the so-called white race, that they are superior to other men of other races. During the war all one heard was "Democracy." How many people understand what the word means or if they did know would stand for it? It is a pity that the American people cannot stop using that word negro.

Received Many Letters

Editor Boston American:

In a recent issue of the Boston American I presented my views on the daylight saving law, and as a result of that letter I have received such correspondence urging me to form an organization to bring about the repeal of that law.

I wish to inform those people through the columns of your paper that I am unable to answer them all individually and have not the necessary time to devote to that task, but wish to make this suggestion:

They should present the same proposition that they made to me to the Boston Post, as that is the only paper in Boston that I know of which is consistently opposed to this abominable law. I also wish it understood that I hold no brief for the policies of the Post as compared with the Boston American, but in this particular matter I am in full accord with them. The Boston American takes the position that it is a good law, and that the people should accept it whether they like it or not. I say let the people themselves decide whether they want this law or not. I am not opposed to it on any religious or sentimental grounds, but purely on a basis of ordinary common sense, namely, the injustice it works on the great majority.

WILLIAM J. IVERS.

One-Man Car

Editor Boston American:

The one-man car is an abomination. The crowds going to and coming from Oak Grove Cemetery in Medford Memorial Day were delayed and jostled about while the perspiring conductor collected fares. I am told that damages resulting from accidents during the year by this type of car would more than pay the wages of another man on each car. SIMON LADD.

Child Labor Law

Editor Boston American:

I am sure every right-minded citizen will rejoice that the Supreme Court has at last knocked the absurd child labor law into a cocked hat. Any such law, limiting the right of capital to increase and multiply, should be (as this has been) declared unconstitutional. Let this decision be a lesson to meddlesome radicals who are trying to interfere with American business!

I must admit that tuberculosis ravages the child workers, that malnutrition and illiteracy attend them and that the ranks of criminals are recruited from their number. But what of this, as compared to the fortunes amassed by those who employ child laborers?

TAKE YOUR MENTAL PICTURE WITHOUT FEAR OR FAVOR

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

SIT before your own camera and take your picture.

You probably know the game. We used to play it in our high school days. And lately it has been revived as an interesting newspaper feature.

Here is a sample: A Mental Photo of Daniel Frohman. He is asked what is his favorite virtue. He answers: Charity. His favorite quality in a man? Honesty. In a woman? Loyalty. His favorite occupation? Actors' Funds.

To the question about his idea of happiness, he wisely answers: Struggling. The query regarding his idea of unhappiness he meets with the sage suggestion: Getting everything you want.

Favorite Color

Then followed inquiries regarding favorite color, choice of location, favorite prose author and favorite poet, favorite painter and composer, favorite hero and heroine in real life.

And the series of mental snapshots ends with questioning his particular aversion, what character in history he dislikes most and what is his favorite motto.

For instance, the character and the career of this interesting and very human man are plainly told in his idea of happiness. You remember that was Struggle.

Only an ambitious person could say that, and one whose view of life and values is wholesome and sane. For the joyous strength of life is in struggle and not in attainment, in continuous aspiration and not in achievement.

Self-Revelation

Please note also the self-revelation in his favorite motto: Give two pints for every quart.

The present writer has not the privilege of personal acquaintance with Mr. Frohman, whose mental photo happened to appear in the New York American on the day this article was written. Therefore these statements are quite impersonal and Mr. Frohman is quite incidentally used as a "horrible example" to illustrate this theme.

But if Mr. Frohman's choice of a motto does not reveal him as an honest man (which still means, as in Shakespeare's day, to be one man picked out of a thousand) and a man as just as he is honest—well, then, this game is a delusion and not a snare to draw you into the frank confession of self-portraiture.

Now take your own mental picture without favor or fear. If then you don't like yourself so well as you might wish, it is always in your power to improve the picture.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

IF today is your birthday you are probably the exact opposite of what you appear to others. You are somewhat of a hypocrite, but not necessarily one with evil intent; you simply do not believe in showing your hand no matter what there is in it.

Today is one of ill omen. All projects contemplated should be postponed until a more favorable day.

The ensuing year will be one of alternate success and failure. You should be careful to avoid quarrels with your immediate associates.

A child born today will be intelligent and dutiful, but unambitious until inspired by the example of others.

Pope Pius X.
George Henry Corliss—Inventor.

ARE YOU BEING "A EASY MARK"?

Are you too easily persuaded to take the way you want to go, rather than the line you should go, under existing circumstances?

None can know circumstances as they are for you but yourself, and if you cannot resist a little momentum in an opposite direction, what would you do if a landslide should strike you?

Get yourself and your legitimate affairs so well in hand that you know your own resources.

Not in a hasty way, but in a definite dollar for dollar, systematic budgeting of your income.

You say, "there are so many clubs and so many calls for money," and you want to be helpful.

How many of these organizations are in a flourishing condition?

Very few, when you sift it.

The reason is because so many are "joiners" who cannot afford to be anything more than bearers of that title.

Make up your mind to have fewer interests, and those wholehearted.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

NAT CLARK, assistant city licensing clerk, is quite a versatile genius, a comedian of no mean ability, composes songs, sings a little, and finds time outside of all his official duties to manage the campaign of his brother RUSSELL B. CLARK, who is running for the House of Representatives, in Ward 16, Roxbury.

You just can't keep LEWIS R. SULLIVAN, formerly of the Governor's Council and of Dorchester, out of the limelight. While passing through City Hall, he made the announcement that he was to be a candidate for the House of Representatives from Dorchester this Fall

The appointment of HENRY C. McKENNA, soldier's relief commissioner, to be chief probation officer of the Superior Court is most pleasing to his friends both in and out of City Hall. MR. McKENNA who has held office since June 1 of last year, has gained for himself the enviable reputation of being a hard, conscientious worker.

With the above announcement is heard the rush of applicants for the berth soon to be vacated by MR. McKENNA. The position pays $5,000 a year. That it will be a veteran of the World War to be appointed or some one who has worked in the interests of the soldiers has been already conceded. A few that have been mentioned for the place are TIMOTHY W. KELLEY, president of the Boston Council Spanish War Veterans, and JOHN J. LYDON of South Boston, formerly of the 101st Infantry.

At the request of PRESIDENT MURRAY HULBERT of the New York Board of Aldermen, MAYOR CURLEY has appointed a committee of seven prominent Bostonians to serve in an advisory capacity in behalf of the participation of American athletes of Irish birth in the Aonach Thailltean (Irish Olympic games) to begin in Dublin on August 6, 1922. The Mayor's committee is made up of the following: CHAIRMAN FRANCIS E. SLATTERY of the Boston Transit Commission, PRESIDENT P. A. O'CONNELL of the E. T. Slattery Corporation, MICHAEL O'KEEFE, JOHN T. O'CONNOR, MAJOR WILLIAM J. CASEY, acting fire commissioner; BRIGADIER-GENERAL JOHN H. DUNN, chairman of the street commissioners, and THEODORE A. GLYNN.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON AWAKENING ON TIME

By Garrett P. Serviss

"What causes a person in normal health to wake up at a certain hour every morning, regardless of alarm clocks? Does the brain count the seconds, or the minutes, while the body sleeps? If I set my alarm clock for, say, 6 a. m., I unfailingly awaken at five minutes to 6. This has me puzzled—C. E. M., Hasbrouck Heights, N. J.

PHILOSOPHICALLY this very interesting phenomenon does not seem difficult to account for. It is a result of the natural rhythm of all vital action. The body is a kind of machine driven by periodically renewed forces. Respiration is rhythmical. Food is taken periodically, or rhythmically, and the more regular and uninterrupted this rhythm of restoration is the better for the body.

The desire for, or necessity of, sleep comes periodically, and there is no more mystery about its cessation than about its inception.

It is not the mind, but the body, urged by its need of recuperation, that normally induces sleep, and equally it is the condition of the body that determines the moment of waking. If you try by an exercise of the will to fix in advance the time of waking from sleep, what you really are doing is to take advantage of the natural rhythmical action of the bodily functions, by adjusting, or perhaps to some extent altering, its period, to accord with your wish. An illustration would be that of a pendulum on which you impressed a certain acceleration, or retardation, of swing by introducing a plus or minus force superadded to gravity.

This, of course, implies a controlling action of the mind upon the body, but exercised only while the body is in a waking state. The period being once impressed there would be no need for interference during sleep owing to the natural tendency of the body functions to rhythmic action.

If there had been no attempt at the start to influence the period of sleep, that period would have been determined only by the bodily need; but, continuing the illustration of the pendulum, your will has given a push to the bob which brings it to the turning point at a different moment from that at which it would otherwise have been attained.

The natural rhythm of vital action is here likened to the force of gravity constantly actuating the pendulum, while the impression of the will-to-wake after a predetermined interval of time resembles the extra impulse that your hand imparts to the pendulum's swing in any particular case, where the waking comes a little in advance of the ringing of the alarm signal, we seem to have proof that the mind does nothing more after starting the swing, for that start actually begins at the moment when the decision is made and not at the moment when the clock is set up, and so the swing ends a little before the bell rings. Evidently the mind during the period of sleep has not been saying to the body "Jump when the bell sounds," but has intrusted all to the swing-period.

As to the possibility of the mind controlling the bodily function, I think that there can be no doubt whatever, though I do not try to give a precise definition of the word "mind." I feel, however, as sure of the existence of my mind as I do of the existence of my body and take a great deal more of interest in it.

Medbury Says—

One Man So Ashamed That He Wrote His Will in Invisible Ink

By John P. Medbury

This is a terrible year for society people and some of them are so hard up that they don't know where their next million is coming from.

Things are so bad for a certain family that one of the men in the household has had to go to work.

He walks to his office every morning at ten o'clock, because his chauffeur doesn't get up that early.

There's nothing stuck up about him and, although his father was as rich as Rockefeller, he goes to town every day and mixes right in with the common millionaires.

Most of the families are cutting down on their help. One woman started to economize by firing the cook's maid.

Another woman is so hard up that she has to answer the telephone herself.

One bachelor says he is moving into smaller quarters and will get along with only three baths. He didn't say at what intervals he was going to take them.

Another bachelor is so hard pressed for money that he is dressing himself in the morning.

And they wear that on a cord so they won't lose it.

It's a well-known fact that one society family is so financially embarrassed that they have money in only four banks.

One guy was so ashamed to leave his heirs such a small fortune that he wrote his will in invisible ink.

He wrote it on asbestos, so he must have figured on taking it with him.

Some of these millionaires have had such business reverses that they only have three bedrooms to sleep in.

Three clubmen got together and decided that one of them would have to sell their sailboats as there wasn't enough wind to run all of them.

The plight of these millionaires is terrible, and the kind-hearted citizens should get together and have a tag day for them.
